VISITORS! ATTENTION!

Have the All-Souvenir Editions of the Courier-Journal mailed to your home address, or to friends, during Shiner Week. Seven issues, June 6 to 12 inclusive, mailed for 25 cents. Give your order to authorized solicitor or agent, or at your post, to-day. COME ON A SERIALLY NUMBERED RECEIPT. An agent or solicitor who cannot give a numbered receipt may be set down as a fraud.

EVERY HUMAN BEING IS A BUYER

He must buy clothes, food, homes, labor, commercial supplies, professional services or something else. THE MAN CANNOT AND DOES NOT LIVE who does not buy. To-day, COME. Therefore, it is important that he know how and where to BUY TO HIS ADVANTAGE.

Merchants take the trade of all these buyers and they devise special sales, bargains and other attractions for their benefit. In these advertising columns those who are trying to reach the buyers make known their attractions. Each merchant tries to do something better for the buyer than his competitor. It is in the advertising columns, therefore, that THE BUYER MUST LOOK TO LEARN WHERE TO MAKE HIS DOLLAR GO THE FURTHEST.

To all buyers, then, the advertising columns of the Courier-Journal bring news of ADVANTAGES—of where the most can be had for the least money. Every human being saves money by consulting the advertisements before investing his money. To-day, the Courier-Journal is filled with news for shoppers, bargain-hunters, business men and all the rest of those who MUST buy, whether they want to or not. And throughout this week, when the Shriners will be in Louisville, the advertising columns will be of lively interest. Many thousands of copies of the Courier-Journal will be mailed daily in all directions by the visitors; the multitudes attending the gathering will peruse the paper diligently and its columns will be the favorite meeting place of seller and buyer. So you, Mr. Seller, and you, Mr. Buyer, the advertising columns. They will make you money.

CATHOLIC HISTORIAN SAYS JAMES REED
DERMOTT DREW PLANS OF WASHINGTON

Denies, After Careful Research, That Mr. J. L'Enfant Was the Real Designer.

(Contributed by International Catholic Truth Society.)

New York, June 5.—Martin J. Griffin, the Catholic historian, noted for his careful research and accuracy as to facts, says that Mr. J. L'Enfant was not the real designer of the City of Washington. Mr. Griffin has had access to Government archives and records, and he tells us that these show conclusively that James Reed Dermott made the plans on which the city was built. Mr. J. L'Enfant, according to the records as unscrupled by Mr. Griffin, was appointed to do the work, but resigned. Andrew Elliott, or Elliott, was appointed his successor, and the commissioners selected James Reed Dermott as Mr. Elliott's assistant. It is thought that both L'Enfant and Elliott may have done preliminary work, but there is no record of the fact.

roll, brother of Archbishop Carroll, owned a large patrimonial estate which included the present Capitol Hill. His house, DuPont Manor, was the first residence built after the city was laid out. He was one of the three commissioners named by Congress to mark the boundaries of the new city. James Hoban designed and built the White House, and superintended the erection of the Capitol. Cornelius McDermott Roe and John Dolan, who contracted on the original brick and stone work on both buildings, John Kearney did the plastering on the Capitol, and Patrick Whelan dug the canal necessary to drain it. In May, 1863, the remains of James Hoban and others of his family were removed from St. Patrick's churchyard, and reinterred in Mount Olivet cemetery, Washington. His son James was an eloquent lawyer, and served as a United States Attorney. This son James married Margaret Neale, and they had four children. One of these, Henry, became a Jesuit.

The Celtic Language.
Cardinal Moran, in an interview with the Catholic Press, of Sidney, is quoted as saying of the Celtic language: "The leading philologists of Europe and America at the present day recognize Irish as of vital importance. It is now generally recognized that the ancient Celtic language is the common source from which the other languages known to us have been derived. There are two streams, so to say, of ancient languages, which have various branches. The Celtic stream, with its wonderful development of Babylonian and Hebrew; and the Aryan, or Indo-European stream, with its countless branches which embrace most of our modern European languages. The aim of present-day philologists is to find the common source from which these two streams have flowed; and, in so far as progress has been made in these researches, Celtic is precisely the only source from which both can have sprung. Hence, I say, the greatest possible literary advantages must be derived from the study of the ancient Celtic tongue; and it is a singular thing that, not only in some of the English universities, but in all of the German universities, in Italy and the United States of America, special chairs have been instituted for its study."

become once more the living language of our race."
Matthew C. Butler's Death.
Matthew Calbraith Butler's recent death deserved more extended notice than has been accorded to it north of the Dixie line, both for his distinguished ancestry and for his personal career. His ancestors for four generations comprised navy and army officers, generals, judges, governors, senators and legislators. He was named after his uncle, Commodore M. C. Perry, who opened the Japanese ports to the world, and whose father and brother were both distinguished captains of the navy. His Butler ancestry gave generals to every war of the Union. His first American progenitor, Capt. James Butler, who came from Ireland in 1745, died fighting for American independence, but he left four sons to continue the fight: Gen. Pierce, Richard, James and William Butler. Of them Lafayette said: "If I want a thing well done I order a Butler to do it." Pierce's son, Gen. William Butler, fought at New Orleans, served several terms in Congress, became Major General and for a time Commander-in-Chief in the Mexican War.

When the Civil War broke out, young Butler was elected captain of the Edgefield Hussars in Hampton's brigade. His gallantry and military judgment secured his advancement, and at 28 he was a Major General. He was a daring cavalry leader, and always a Christian gentleman. He would take the sick soldiers to his quarters and personally attend to their wants. After the war he became the first lawyer of South Carolina. He devoted his talent chiefly to saving his people from reconstruction spoilsmen. For the negroes he had always the kindest feelings. Replying to Senator Frye, he said: "The South is 'sold' for good and honest government, and there is not a man among us who is a man that feels enmity towards the colored people. The Senator has patriotically said that they stayed at home while we were at the front and protected our wives and children. So they did, and may my right arm be paralyzed if I have cherished a sentiment of hostility against these kind-hearted people who guarded all that were dear to me!"

ident McKinley appointed him Major General, and later named him Commissioner to Cuba to arrange the terms of peace.
In 1904 he requested his friend, the late James R. Randall, to introduce him to the Jesuit Fathers in Augusta, Ga. The Rev. M. Kenny, S. J., baptized him on February 28, 1904, his 72d birthday. Of the Catholic Church he said: "I have been studying her doctrines for eighteen years; I have watched her closer than I think I have been witness to her great work in the betterment of the world, but what made the greatest impression on me, among her many good works, was the Little Sisters of the Poor." After being baptized and confirmed he turned to Col. F. R. Brooks, his old scout and camp-fire friend. "Click," he said, "for the first time in my life I am not afraid to die." He passed away to another world on April 14.

Half a Million Endowment.
The Knights of Columbus, in their scheme to raise half a million for the endowment fund of the Catholic University at Washington, D. C., have perfected arrangements with the trustees of the university for the proper protection and investment of the funds. The committee has made an agreement with the trustees to allow a perpetual scholarship for each $10,000 of the fund subscribed, thus insuring, by the raising of the endowment fund, fifty perpetual scholarships.
Archbishop Glennon, of St. Louis, and Walter George Smith, of Philadelphia, have been appointed a special committee of the trustees to consider the proposals made by the Ancient Order of Hibernians to endow a number of scholarships.
New University.
The Dominicans are building a new university in the most central part of Rome, Italy, where they hope to rival their former greatness in the Eternal City. The chairs of moral and dogmatic theology will be subdivided into theoretical and historical theology. Exegesis, after a preparatory course of Hebrew, Egyptian and Greek, will be treated under the heads of Methodology, Textual Criticism and History of Exegesis. Church history will have the assistance of lectures on paleography, diplomatics and auxiliary sciences. The programme is wide and varied, and to carry it through the cleverest men of the order will be encouraged. The work of course has the encouragement of Pope Pius X.

FLOWERS FOR SOUTH'S DEAD

Graves In Arlington Will Be Decorated To-day.

Oration by Col. Robert E.
Lee, Jr., of Virginia.

$10,000 Raised To Erect a Monument.

FUND IS RAPIDLY GROWING.

Washington, June 5.—(Special.)—Sons and daughters of the South will gather to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock under the host of the trumpet sounds the "assembly" call in the Confederate section of the National cemetery at Arlington to pay tribute to the Confederate dead and strew flowers upon the graves of those who fell during the Civil War.

The service will be conducted under the auspices of the Confederate Veterans' Association at Camp Hill, United Confederate Veterans, the United Sons of Confederate Veterans, the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Southern Relief Society of Washington. Capt. John M. Hickey is chairman of the joint committee and will preside.

The oration of the day will be delivered by Col. Robert E. Lee, Jr., of Virginia. When the tomb of the unknown dead is decorated the band will play "The Blue and the Gray" and at the decoration of the grave of Gen. Joseph E. Wheeler, "Rock of Ages."

$10,000 For a Monument.

When President Taft was Secretary of War he issued an order giving permission to Southern organizations to erect in the center of the Confederate section at Arlington a monument to the "Old Confederate soldier who has fought his last fight and now rests beneath the shade of the trees," whereupon Confederate Veterans Camp No. 171 of the District of Columbia, the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the Sons of Confederate Veterans and the Southern Relief Society of the District of Columbia organized a Confederate Arlington Monument Association. The United Daughters of the Confederacy at their annual convention in Norfolk, Va., two years ago absorbed the Confederate Arlington Monument Association and assumed the sole responsibility of collecting funds and erecting the monument. Under the wise and skillful management of Mrs. Cornelia Branch Stone, president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and Hilar A. Herbert, chairman of the local executive committee of the Arlington Confederate Monument Association, excellent progress has been made, and $10,000 has been raised for the purpose. This is being added to contributions monthly from every section of the United States.

Must Not Sign Warehouse Receipts.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue announced to-day that no provision is made in the internal revenue laws for the verification or registry of warehouse receipts or certificates for gaugers or other revenue officers, or the use of their names in connection therewith, when the receipts or certificates have been officially verified. The signing of such receipts or certificates by gaugers or other revenue officers, or the use of their names in connection therewith, when the receipts or certificates have been officially verified, is therefore prohibited, and collectors will report any case coming to their notice where these instructions are disregarded.

Gaugers, however, are permitted under existing regulations to furnish distillers with copies of their gauge reports in the prescribed form, and no objection is seen to distillers attaching such gauge reports to warehouse certificates issued by them, as such reports do not represent the spirits gauged as remaining in the designated warehouse.

Virginia Horses For Army.

So well pleased is Quartermaster General Alshiro of the army with horses recently purchased in Virginia for the use of the United States Cavalry that he is making arrangements for leasing property near Port Royal, Va., for use as a station for animal husbandry in the district. Capt. Casper H. Conrad, Jr., will have charge of the purchase of horses in Virginia, and when sufficient numbers have been bought they will be shipped to the army remount stations at Fort Reno and Fort Keogh.

Mr. Capers Better.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue John G. Capers has so far recovered from his recent critical illness as to be able to sit up half an hour each day. Commissioner Capers has been in the hospital for several months and his physicians hope that within the next three or four weeks he will be able to leave the hospital and to his permanent recovery, which is now assured.

The body of Joseph Horton, the attorney who died yesterday, has been shipped to Nashville, Tenn., where he lived and practiced law for many years, and the funeral will be held at that place to-morrow.

Gifford Pinchot, United States Forester, will be the guest of the Southern Club in Washington on Monday evening, where he will deliver an address on "The National Forests and Their Use by the People."

E. H. MENTZ DIES AT GLASGOW JUNCTION

MAN THAT MADE GREAT CAVERN FAMOUS PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY.

Glasgow, Ky., June 5.—(Special.)—E. H. Mentz, proprietor of the well-known Mentz Hotel of this place, and a well-known citizen of Glasgow Junction, died suddenly of hemorrhage of the brain at 3 o'clock this morning.

At the time of his death he was Assistant Deputy Collector of the United States internal revenue service, Third district of Kentucky. He was also general manager of the Mammoth Cave railroad, which operates trains between Glasgow Junction and Mammoth Cave. He was also a thirty-second-degree Mason.

Mr. Mentz was born in Richmond, Wis., in 1840, coming to Kentucky when he was nineteen, and marrying Miss Molly Myan, a handsome and renowned young woman of Columbus. He was traveling on the Louisville and Nashville, covering all the lines north of Nashville, for a period of several years until he embarked in the hotel business at Glasgow Junction. In handling Mammoth Cave, both in connection with the railroad and his hotel, his list of acquaintances extended to all over the world. The building of the Mammoth Cave railroad and the consequent relaxation of the old-fashioned stage coach was largely due to his work and initiative.

Standing in the floor of the hotel about 8 o'clock p. m. he was suddenly taken ill and assisted to his room. The stroke rendered him unconscious and he gradually sank until the end came peacefully at 2 o'clock in the morning. His brother, George Mentz, a banker and farmer at Munfordville, died in much the same way only two months ago. A wife and five children survive. The funeral will be held at Glasgow Monday at noon.

CIRCUS DAY

Still Brings Out Kentucky's Yeomanry.

TYPICAL FAMILY THAT SAW SHOW AT FRANKFORT.

JUPITER PLUVIUS INTERFERES WITH CAPITAL SOCIAL SET.

NUMEROUS JUNE GATHERINGS.

[Special Correspondence Courier-Journal.] Frankfort, Ky., June 5.—There used to be three big days in Frankfort. Circus day, Street Fair day and County Court day. The street fairs were promptly declared a nuisance and never were worth the demonstration they caused and the streets were weeks getting cleaned again. The County Court day sales are still held on the principal streets of the Capital, and there "The Moo Cow Show" and the small pigs fight recklessly for first place. But Mrs. Crane has told us a few things which we have always known and ignored, we are going to have a stockyard—one of these very days. But the circus—there's magic in the name, is with us to quote poor Sara Maud Ruggles, "only once in so often." The elephant may have lost his tusks; the monkey his monkey-shines; the camel be moth-eaten and blind to boot and "Folly of the Circus" sans teeth, sans figure and sans agility, but it's always the circus.

The honorable and staid body of the Court of Appeals once adjourned court to watch the elephants swim the river—and we thought more of that body of learned judges ever since and since then business is at a standstill till the last little monkey is asleep in his cage on route to Paducah.

The elements didn't have the heart to continue the downpour that threatened the small boys and his "paw's" bliss. It stopped at the right time and everybody came home full of enthusiasm and yellow mud.

The day had its lessons too—if you care to go deep enough on such days to see sermons in stones and running brooks. Can you think of any father bringing his small motherhood hood of tan to town from a home five miles distant, that the babies may see the parade? Can you?

The "littlest girl" was so small she didn't count. She was tucked comfortably in the crook of Dad's loving arms and his right hand tried to keep a wriggling 3-year-old from wriggling under a peanut stand.

The others whined—holding hands and we bribed the layout to stand still and have their pictures "took." You see there are many skeptics who don't believe a word we say about our circus stories and we're going to prove them the first time we catch a circus day with the sun shining and exposures? Who ever heard of a kid that could be coaxed or coerced into standing still long enough for a time exposure on circus day—say, you never were in Frankfort were you?

This family of ten tried to stand still, but the mistake was our own. We paid over the bribe first and then a balloon man came by and every single head in that photo was like a side show poster—the "Double-headed Family" from Podunk," is the title in our kodak book.

Family's Circus Outfit.

That family's outfit was too deep for tears. A small 16-year-old boy was dressed up in a coat of dad's and there he stood with the sleeves flapping around, protesting as he waved it in the parade. A felt hat; several sizes too large completed the costume—if it needed completion.

Another boy in the family—whose size—if not his age, demanded trousers, was rigged up in a girl's mother hood dress and a 16-cent Jimmy—since gone to seed, was his ludicrous ensemble.

The baby wore what all good, regulation, country babies ought to wear—a pinky, pink dress and a damp flapping cap, rakishly tilted over one eye. If the babies didn't wear this regulation costume how would we ever know they were babies from the knobs and they'd miss many sticks of peppermint candy.

Is enough to disgust one with modern photography to miss the colors in a picture. To get a lovely group of young girls to stop chewing sample tarts and stand still, and then see their head gear—that looked like tropical box-queets and dresses of rose and pink

Cause

We had to have more room. Constant and steady growth has marked our career from the beginning. In the past four years this growth has been unprecedented, and with our present space it has been impossible to adequately accommodate our trade and display our merchandise. MORE ROOM WAS AN ABSOLUTE NECESSITY, so we are going to build another story over our center store for our alteration rooms, giving the space now occupied in this work as an additional show room. This show room, by the way, which will be used for our costumes and furs, will be the handsomest in the United States. The floor will be the richest Italian mosaic inlaid, with genuine Oriental rugs. The fixtures will be of inlaid mahogany.

The additional space we will secure is 5,800 square feet. In addition to this extra store and the new building, we will remodel the entire interior of our present stores, making them when completed the most modern establishment in this city. The plans were designed by Architect J. J. Gaffney, the contracts have all been let, and the contractors only await the disposition of our present stock before starting the work.

Effect

The result of these contemplated changes is a matter of widespread interest to all the ladies in this community. Coming, as it does, right in the height of the season, necessitating the immediate disposal of every garment in our house, insures bargains of unprecedented magnitude.

The very nature of our garments precludes the possibility of their remaining on hand while the walls are being torn down. The dirt and debris, flying dust and mortar would simply ruin them. This we know better than anybody else, and for that reason we are determined to sell every single piece at whatever price it will bring, and this must be done in the shortest possible time.

We are fully aware that these exquisite garments would only bring a fraction of their real worth were we to keep them while this building goes on, consequently we are going to sell them BEFORE THE WORK STARTS.

Of course, we cannot give a detailed reduction schedule on everything, but this advertisement will portray in a brief way how determined we are to sell quick. The sale starts to-morrow morning, and there will be no let up until everything has been sold. You know our famous qualities; you are familiar with our store policy. You can come now expecting the most magnificent bargains in our history. You will not be disappointed.

No goods sent on approval, none exchanged, none taken back for credit. It's an opportunity of a lifetime. Don't miss it.

and purple, loom up in black and white in that photo like a side show poster—the "Double-headed Family" from Podunk," is the title in our kodak book.

It was a wet, pretty lot that piled into all sorts of vehicles to go home with colored balloons, muddy shoes, sleepy babies—the babies if you could only see how cute they are, small boys and stomachs, much in evidence. Popcorn, lemonade, fish sandwiches, and all-day suckers must be paid for into the treasury of outraged nature.

A young thing from a nearby seminary was being treated to all the rights that a day at the circus admits. The young lady's mamma was beaming upon the "Sweet Young Thing" and sprang up as to who should buy the popcorn. Leaning over with all the airs that a long bellehship warranted, the "Young Thing" sweetly said:

"What is the cashmere?"

"Mylene Sniffles," said the horrified mamma, "how often am I to tell you that I saw stomach!"

The Week's Social Doings.

We're rained in the ground. The Country Club grounds are submerged and the board of managers are thinking of turning them into a lake and building a bathhouse.

Things are looking up a bit—despite a few drawbacks, but the social swing will not be in full tilt till all the boys and girls are at home from school and college.

The rest will struggle in about the eighteenth or twentieth of June—might as well stay till Fourth of July.

Country Club Hostesses.

Mrs. Guy H. Briggs and Mrs. George B. Harper were the hostesses at the Country Club last Saturday. With each succeeding week the members who enjoy these functions increase in numbers. Saturday was no exception to the rule and a number of out-of-town visitors added to the enjoyment. In years no one has seen such an abundance of roses, and the tea tables so far have been laden with blossoms. On this day the table was riotous with red roses and peonies. The centerpiece was a tall vase of the peonies and low bowls of every variety of red rose were placed on the table and on the wide, old-fashioned mantle shelf.

Delicious tea and sandwiches were the appropriate things for the warm day. Those assisting the hostesses were: Mrs. William Wallace and Miss Sue Scott, of Lexington; Miss Lillian Poyntz, Miss Mason Montgomery, Miss Nina Viescher, Miss Virginia Gray, Miss Edith Posey, Miss Gladys Rodman and Mrs. Will Gray.

Finis For the Lefters.

The Lefters held their last meeting on Friday. Mrs. T. J. Nunn and Mrs. T. P. Tallaferrero were the hostesses and the meeting was held at the home of Miss Virginia Nunn.

The day brought forth many summer gowns and with these the gorgeous workbags harmonized perfectly. There was not the slightest attempt on the part of the most energetic of the meddlesome to sew, but as it is a tradition of the club that it is to be a "homey" affair the workbag is still with us on these occasions.

Three delightful numbers, not on the programme, was a brilliant piano selection by Mrs. E. P. Daniel, of New York, the guest of Mrs. Nunn. This charming woman, with a crown of silver hair and eyes as bright as a school-girl, gave some of those ladies a jar—they all immediately began to give themselves airs and all declared they never intended to be old—a fact that was quite patent. If you had peeped into the cozy sitting-room—old indeed—the very ideal!

Another number was a song, "Abundance," which was deliciously rendered by Miss Rachel Settle. Miss Settle's voice bubbled over with melody and her progress in this line was heartily endorsed. Mrs. Ralph Wilson is a young favorite in clubdom and on this occasion she sang "I'm Dreaming of You at Twilight," with infinite sweetness.

Miss Nunn's Bridge.

Miss Virginia Nunn entertained a few tables at bridge for her out-of-town guests last Friday evening, the guests of honor being: Miss Gwen-dolyn Haynes, of Marion; Miss Agnes Orr, of Princeton; Mr. John M. Dyer, of Morganfield, and Mr. George Bailey, of Madisonville.

A delightfully appointed luncheon was served to about twenty-four guests.

Miss Nina Viescher entertained the Small Bridge Club last week at her home on the South Side. The club prize was won by Miss Lillian Poyntz and the guest prize by Mrs. Jack Stew-art. A delicious salad and ice course followed the game.

Beside the club members present the following invited guests enjoyed the game: Mrs. William Wallace and Miss Sue Scott, of Lexington; Miss Hattie Scott and her guest, Mrs. E. P. Sanderson, of Waltham, Mass.

For Mrs. E. P. Sanderson.

Misses Hattie and Elmie Scott entertained about fifty guests on Thursday last, with a beautiful luncheon given for their guest, Mrs. E. P. Sanderson, of Waltham, Mass. The Scott home was a bower of roses, peonies and mock orange blossoms. The two-course luncheon was served in buffet style and in a most charming manner.

Miss Harriet McClure gave a parlor concert on Monday evening last, at the building fund of the Presbyterian church. The cozy home of the McClures was fairly a-bloom with roses and peonies. Across the mantles were festoons of roses, while vases and bowls full of these blossoms were placed all over the house.

The porch and pergola were lighted up with fantastic lanterns, and garlands of roses draped from post to post.

The scene, with a soft moonlight over the old rose gardens, was most enchanting.

Miss Charlotte Watson, who is president of the Junior Missionary Society of the city, was the guest of honor at a young members' lovely tea and reception at Watson Court last Thursday afternoon. Less than fifty guests served to about twenty young guests. The house was lovely with spring flowers.

Stage Party.

Master Edmund B. Rodman, Jr., is a member of the "little boys' set." Last week he was 7 years old and in honor of the occasion he was given a "stag" birthday party. The centerpiece on the table was a tall vase of pink peonies and around the base of this was pink roses and ferns. Fifteen baseballs circled this and were tied with pink ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Cloud, of Mr. and Mrs. Law Foster, from Cincinnati, with a party of friends, motored to Frankfort on Saturday afternoon and will remain until Sunday evening as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rodman and family. Mrs. Rodman will accompany them home to attend the races. On Sunday Mrs. Rodman had a few friends in to meet her guests and served a delicious luncheon. The house was attractively decorated with roses for the luncheon.

Personal Points.

Miss Natalie Martin, who has been attending school at Staunton, Va., is at home for the holidays. Master Jack Martin, who has been a student at the Millersburg Military Institute, will also spend the holidays at home with his parents, Col. A. D. Martin and Mrs. Martin.

Miss Marguerite McLean, a student at the Mary Baldwin school at Staunton, Va., arrived home the first of the week to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gray McLean.

Miss Helen O'Rear has returned from the Macon-Randolph school and will spend the holidays with her parents, Judge E. C. O'Rear and Mrs. O'Rear, at "Glenairy," their country home, near this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crittenden and little daughter, Anne Alicia, of Louisville, spent a few days last week with Mr. Crittenden's mother, Mrs. Harriet Crittenden and family.

Mrs. Sam J. Shackelford and daughter, Mrs. Dorothy, and Mrs. W. H. McAlbin were in Louisville the past week visiting friends.

The Income Bond Policy

Is a contract that is being written for the first time by any Old Line Life Insurance Company doing business in Kentucky, and provides protection against the following contingencies:

FIRST

—DEATH PRIOR TO AGE 70.

In which case the amount of the policy will be at once paid, thereby keeping your wife and children from being dependent on others for support and perhaps saving the home, which has been practically paid for.

SECOND

—LOSS OF EARNING POWER.

If you are totally and permanently disabled the company will keep your insurance in force by paying the premiums for you, or you can draw the amount of the policy in ten equal annual installments.

THIRD

—WANT IN OLD AGE.

When you reach the age of seventy the amount of the policy will be paid you in a lump sum, or you can have a monthly income during the remainder of your life equal to twelve (12) per cent.

This policy has been carefully prepared by our Actuary; is up to date in every respect and is designed to combine in one contract, and at a low cost, benefits that could be formerly secured only by taking two or three separate policies at a much higher rate. It is issued only by the

POSTMASTER

Made Defendant In Suit For Support.

WIFE ALLIGES THAT HUSBAND FORCED HER TO LEAVE HIM.

NOW WANTS $10 PER WEEK TO LIVE ON.

"DRY" PARADE THE STREETS.

Rollo H. Summers, postmaster at Solon, Owen township, Clark county, Ind., was yesterday made defendant in a suit for support that was filed by Mrs. Catherine Summers, through her attorney, in the Clark Circuit Court at Jeffersonville. In her complaint Mrs. Summers sets forth that she was married to the defendant on July 28, 1908, and alleges that she was forced to leave him on February 17, 1909. Mrs. Summers alleges that the defendant refused to support her and her children, and that she was forced to leave him. She asserts that she has been continuously dependent on him, and that she should leave him, and so it is charged in the complaint, and he did not care for her. It is alleged that the plaintiff and defendant lived with the mother and sister of the latter, and that the husband often said in the presence of the family he did not care for his wife and wanted her to leave. It is further asserted that during the entire married life the defendant refused to buy the plaintiff any clothing and declined to accompany her to gatherings of the people, but, as alleged, the defendant went by himself. The plaintiff asserts that at the time of her marriage she had $25 of her personal funds, and this she turned over to her husband, but he has refused to give it back to her. The complaint sets up that the defendant is a merchant at Solon and operates a general store, the stock in which is worth between $100 and $200, the income being $100 per month. It is also alleged he has a one-third undivided interest in a brick business house and dwelling that is worth $3,000 and that he also earns $15 per month as postmaster at Solon. It is asserted the plaintiff is an able-bodied young man and capable of making a good living. A demand is made for $10 per week for support of the plaintiff and judgment for $100 that the defendant has that belongs to the plaintiff.

Parade the Streets.
The demonstration arranged by the local option managers for yesterday afternoon attracted a large crowd, and many persons and vehicles were in the parade. Nearly all of the latter were decorated in some manner and a majority had a banner containing some catchy local option phrase. The affair was humorously throughout and nothing was said or done to mar the pleasure of the spectators. Those who did not agree with the promoters of the turnout looked on with interest, but made no attempt to interfere, they were displaced by either word or sign.

REPUBLICAN ROW ON IN BREATHITT

MAGISTRATE HURST RESIGNS IN FROZEN DISTRICT FOR HARMONY.

Jackson, Ky., June 5.—[Special]—J. C. Hurst, Republican nominee for County Judge of Breathitt county, to-day resigned his office as Justice of the Peace in the frozen district of Breathitt county, a kinman of Mr. Hurst, will probably be appointed to fill out the unexpired term. Frozen precinct has for several years been the banner Republican district of this county, but is now reported to be badly divided on account of a factional fight over the Republican nomination for Magistrate held there last week. The resignation of Mr. Hurst in favor of Wilson is claimed to be an effort to reconcile the rival factions in Hurst's home district. Mr. Wilson now concedes the nomination to W. H. Peffer. Two men were shot at the convention. The chances of the Republicans to carry the county at the fall election are very much lessened by the desperate action of their nominee for County Clerk, A. S. Johnson, in shooting up the town day before yesterday.

FALLS FROM WAGON AND SUFFERS SEVERE INJURIES.

W. R. Slaughter, a truck gardener, living on the road between Middletown and Jeffersonville, was made unconscious for an hour at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning, when he was thrown to the pavement from the back of his wagon when the horse started suddenly. Slaughter was loading crates into his wagon at the Floyd-street market when the accident occurred. He was taken to the city hospital, where it was found that he had received a slight concussion of the brain and bruises to his back.

Acquitted of Embezzlement.

Salem, Ind., June 5.—John Sweeney, who was charged with embezzling $500 from the Atlas Poultry Company, was acquitted yesterday.

Bedford, Ind., June 5.—What came near being a fearful auto wreck with loss of life occurred yesterday at the bridge over White river, two miles south of Bedford, when a large automobile of the Cadillac Automobile Company, of Detroit, Mich., being demonstrated by James Clout, of Orleans, struck the entrance to the bridge when the machine became uncontrollable on account of the wet condition of the roads and plunged backward down the incline over a twenty-foot grade. The occupants saved themselves by jumping, but the damage to the auto was heavy. Contract For Congulator. The Board of Waterworks at a meeting yesterday awarded the contract for the construction of a cogulating plant to Alfred N. Struck & Co., of Louisville, for $104,420.42, which was the lowest bid received. The work is to be done by January 1 next. The highest bid was $111,000. Charged With Housebreaking. London, Ky., June 5.—Tommy Lane and Delrick Selvy, aged fourteen and ten years respectively, were arrested at Pittsburg, Ky., and brought here today. Hutsenpiller Secretly Married On Derby Day. Mingling with a crowd of jolly picnickers at White City more than a year ago, Cupid bent his bow and let go several arrows. Two of the merry-makers were victims of the little matchmaker and as a result the secret marriage of Miss Marie Cockerell, aged 18 years, daughter of Mrs. Kate Cockerell, and Charles B. Hutsenpiller, a window dresser, which took place Derby day, May 3, has just been announced. The young people met for the first time at a school picnic. Acquaintance soon ripened into love and Mr. Hutsenpiller finally won the consent of Miss Cockerell to become his wife. Without taking any of their friends into their confidence, the young people went to Jeffersonville, where they were quietly married by Magistrate Kelswin. So well did Mr. Hutsenpiller keep his secret that his fellow employees did not learn of the wedding. The secret leaked out for the first time yesterday, and when approached by a reporter for the circumstances of the romance, the young man blushingly admitted that he was no longer a member of the bachelor club. Miss Cockerell, who recently moved to Louisville from Shepherdsville, is a very attractive young woman and has a wide circle of friends. Mr. Hutsenpiller is 21 years of age and has lived in Louisville all his life. The newly married couple will make their future home at 739 South Sixth street. CHORAL CLUB'S SONG SERVICE AT WARREN MEMORIAL. The Louisville Choral Club will give its third and last song service of the year at the Warren Memorial church, Fourth avenue and Broadway, this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The Rev. An organ prelude, a fantasia of Bach, by Karl Shackleton, the club accompanist, is following on the program by the greatest of all chorals, Luther's "Ein feste Burg." The remainder of the service is taken partly from ancient and partly from modern churchly compositions. The names Beethoven, Palestrina, Marchetti, Liszt, Bollo and Tschakowsky are following on the program by music of the highest type. The following is the program: Prelude—Fantasia in G major, Bach. Choral—A Mighty Fortress Is Our God, Luther. Invocation—The Rev. Henry Dosker, D. D. Kyrie—Prelude in D major, Beethoven. (a) Ode on the Name of Jesus, Old Melody, 1676. TO TRY EXPERIMENT ON SEVERAL STREETS. The Board of Public Works has decided to try cold Kentucky asphalt on a number of streets in the city as an experiment. The scheme of the board is to plow up a macadam street and lay broken stone over it and to follow this up by spreading crude asphalt from the Kentucky mines over it. The experiment will be tried on Store avenue, between Ohio street and Letter Avenue; on Montgomery street, between Twenty-third and Twenty-seventh streets; and on Third street, between First and Third streets. The estimated cost is $15,000, and the city employees will do the work. The asphalt will be brought from the American Standard Asphalt Company. Edward C. Hegan May Lose His Country Place.

TITLE QUESTIONED BY HEIR OF HIRAM TUCKER.

COURT RULINGS INDICATE VICTORY FOR PLAINTIFF.

IN THE COURTS YESTERDAY.

If "lawing" ever was made easy for anyone it seems so to have been for Mrs. Lucy Ann Dulin, whose suit against Edward C. Hegan, vice president of the Continental Bank, appears to have been passed upon already by the Court of Appeals. The questioner of a notable will, Judge Shackelford Miller, following the mandate of the Court of Appeals, which thrice has similarly construed the document, yesterday at joint session, handed down an opinion giving his reasons for overruling a demurrer to the suit. That is to say, that the plaintiff has a cause of action, and, in view of the Court's previous rulings, likely will take from Mr. Hegan his beautiful country place on the Shelbyville pike twelve miles from Louisville.

Hiram Tucker, an extensive landowner in Jefferson county, died in 1852, leaving a will he himself wrote with the intent, it is said, of preventing his wife's relatives from ever coming into possession of his estate. He provided that the property should go to his four children, Hiram, Jr., Clarence Linden, Samuel and Melissa Tucker, share and share alike, with the further provision that should they die without issue their portions should revert to the estate. A last proviso was to the effect that should all the children die, the property was to pass to two nieces, Mrs. D. W. then Lucy Ann Tucker, daughter of George Tucker, and to Amanda Tucker, a daughter of E. F. Tucker.

The will got to the Court of Appeals three times on questions as to the degree to which it was to be construed. In an opinion filed on May 2, 1877, in the Court of Appeals, the court said: "In the former opinion in this case it was held that the children of Hiram Tucker, taken under his will, had an estate for life, and that the estate of the children of Hiram Tucker should pass under the will to the children of Hiram Tucker, if he survives her, and if he should die without issue then to the estate of Hiram Tucker. As Judge Miller observed in his opinion, 'Presumably that state of the case has come about, and in this action, Clarence Linden, who had come into possession of about 24 acres situated as described, died in February, 1907, without children, never having married. He, however, had a son, Hiram, who is now a resident of Middletown, and it is a half interest in this land that is the subject of the present suit. Hiram Tucker, dead and she does not know whether she left children or who may be her cousin's heirs.'

Similar situations in other suits have been presented to the Appellate Court before and after the death of Hiram Tucker. In the case of the late Mrs. Dulin, it appears to be certain that Mrs. Dulin will get what she prays for. Mr. Hegan undoubtedly would not lose what he had paid out in the way of improvements. In the case of the late Mrs. Dulin, it appears to be certain that Mrs. Dulin will get what she prays for. Mr. Hegan undoubtedly would not lose what he had paid out in the way of improvements.

Judgment of Long-standing Claim. Yesterday, handed down a decision that he could enter an appeal from the decision of the Circuit Court in the case of W. T. Burch against D. E. and S. K. Hooper, he gave a judgment in a suit filed in the Jefferson Circuit Court on January 10, 1874. The judgment was in favor of Mrs. Virginia Burch, widow and executrix of the plaintiff, and is for $14,000. The suit was brought by Mrs. Burch, who died in 1874, and which will bear simple interest from that time, and the balance of the judgment is on a lumber claim and to bear interest only from the date the judgment is entered.

The plaintiff, who died on October 11, 1896, away back in the sixties, was the owner of a sawmill on the banks of the River. At that time the Elizabethtown and Paducah railroad was being built, and the plaintiff sold a quantity of lumber to the Hooper brothers, subcontractors at the work. Their defense was that there was an understanding they were to pay Mr. Burch when they were paid by their superior contractors. The railroad failed to pay out and the Hoopers were forgotten or lost sight of in the court proceedings which followed. Mr. Burch moved to Louisville and began the practice of law. He died and his widow revived the action, the defendants being found, one in the West and the other on a Kentucky farm. The evidence which determined the decision of the case was incomplete parts of the records having been lost. Unsubstantiated claims of the defendants were thrown out and the Commissioner arrived at his findings by considering the admissions of both parties made in their various pleadings to the suit. Under the terms of the decision Mrs. Burch should get something like $14,000.

Non-resident Companies and Agents. If a non-resident company doing business in this State enters an appearance at court and moves the quashing of a Sheriff's service, the company, through a person the company asserts is not its agent, such a company must name in its motion a person upon whom service may be had in order to get favorable ruling on its motion. This is the abstract of a ruling handed down yesterday by Judge O'Doherty in joint session and came in the suit of Richard Ware against the Household Loan Company, in which the plaintiff seeks $2,000 as damages.

He alleges that on April 23, 1908, representatives of the defendant company went to his home, at 416 West Brookridge street, in his absence and, on the strength of a chattel mortgage, took away certain pieces of furniture, including the bed upon which an infant daughter lay almost dying.

Service of the courts was had on M. Traynor, said to have been the agent of the defendant company. He made affidavit that he was not the agent and later the company entered a motion asking that the Sheriff's service upon Traynor be quashed. Unless the defendant in such a case were required to name a person upon whom service could be had, Judge O'Doherty points out, an endless chain effect would result, the same proceedings having to be gone through with following service upon any number of persons suspected of being representatives of the company.

Twelve Divorce Decrees Granted.

Twelve divorce decrees were handed down by the Chancellors, Judge Miller and Judge Kirby, yesterday at joint session as follows: Mary Caruth, from William Caruth; abandonment alleged. They were married in Bowling Green in 1901.

Robert L. Kirby, from Eliza Jane Kirby; five years' separation shown. They were married at Danville, Ky., in 1886. The defendant lives at Bengal, Taylor, Ky.

C. H. Yount, from Bessie Yount; abandonment alleged. They were married in Shelby county on June 12, 1886. Four children—Irving, William, Samuel and Robert Yount—are given into the custody of the mother.

George Madison, from Mary Madison; abandonment alleged. They were married in Jeffersonville in September, 1884.

Fannie Berry, from Joseph Berry; five years' separation shown. They were married in Louisville, the date not given.

Hal Kaufman, from Mattie Kaufman; five years' separation shown. They were married in June, 1898.

Mary Dillingham, from George Dillingham; abandonment charged. They were married in November, 1899.

Lizzie Allen, from James Allen; abandonment alleged. They were married on October 2, 1890.

Nina Beasley, from Walter Beasley; five years' separation shown. They were married in 1892.

Elmore Wynne Parks, from Samuel

The mother is given the custody of her son, Charles Milton Kelly, and the father is required to support him. The parties were married on January 23, 1898, in Louisville.

When Default Is Not Default. If several defendants should be jointly sued and only one answer the action, the case on trial going for the defendant, the plaintiff may not be awarded judgment against the other defendants on his motion. Judge O'Doherty so ruled yesterday in joint session when he overruled a motion made in the case of W. L. Atherton against J. C. Fisher and another partner in the firm of J. C. Fisher & Co. Atherton asked for some $3,000 as damages for injuries he received when run down by a wagon of the company named. In Judge O'Doherty's court on May 14 a jury found for J. C. Fisher, the defendant who answered.

Two New Trials Are Refused. Motions for new trials in two cases where administrators of colored men had recovered judgments for damages were overruled yesterday by Judge O'Doherty in joint session. One was that in which Anna L. Johnson, as administratrix of Cleophas Payne, was awarded $12,500. The other was that in which the Illinois Central Railway was awarded $1,000. The second case was that in which William Taylor, as administrator of John Raymond, was awarded $1,000 by a jury in Judge O'Doherty's court on May 14. The case was tried on the grounds of the motion for the new trial were that before the jury the city ordinance requiring the defendants to pay annual licenses of $2,000 to the city, is unconstitutional. This ordinance was passed by the city council and will go to the Court of Appeals for a final order as to the validity of the measure.

Loan Agents' License Exorbitant. Judge Pryor, passing on the action of the Commonwealth against ten of the loan agencies of Louisville, yesterday ruled that the city ordinance requiring the defendants to pay annual licenses of $2,000 to the city, is unconstitutional. This ordinance was passed by the city council and will go to the Court of Appeals for a final order as to the validity of the measure.

Elizabeth Nicholson sued Marlon Nicholson for divorce, alleging abandonment. They were married on May 21, 1908, and separated on the same day. A boy, now one year of age, was born, for whose support the defendant contributes $3 a week.

Judgment of $750 against the Stuart Robinson Memorial Presbyterian church. Led by a suit filed in the Circuit Court yesterday by Thomas W. Bullitt, who seeks for interest from July 5, 1908. It is set forth that the sum asked for is the balance due on a note.

The Head Order of Indiana Red Men Loses Suit Involving An Important Question.

Jasper, Ind., June 5.—(Special.)—The case of the Great Council of Indiana Improved Order of Red Men vs. William A. Wilson, of this place, and others, was decided by Judge Kiper, at Shelbyville, to-day in favor of the defendant, Judge Kiper. According to the Great Council, had no right to maintain its action. In deciding the case he said he thought some of the allegations as to fraud had been proven by the evidence and that the property had been sold for an inadequate consideration, but that he did not think the Great Council had the right to maintain the suit.

According to all of the persons property belonging to the tribe when it became extinct, but the real estate belongs to the members. According to the case, a tribe having $2,000 in cash to-day, if it becomes extinct, would be compelled to turn over to the Great Council all the $2,000, but just before court, the Great Council had made a motion for a new trial, which it expects the court to overrule, where the plaintiff will appeal the case to the Supreme Court.

A. Story, of New Albany, filed the suit while he was great sachem of the tribe in this State, and as the decision is rendered, the final order in the State, the final decision will be watched with much interest.

When this money was returned to him yesterday, there came with it the official notice that the girl, who was only eighteen years old, had been sent to Siberia a few days before the money reached Russia. Milgrom left a note reading:

"My soul is dead; why should my body live?"

EXERCISES OF NEW LIBERAL COLLEGE OF ARTS.

HELD AT MACAULEY'S THEATER LAST NIGHT.

DR. H. C. TOLMAN DELIVERS PRINCIPAL ADDRESS.

LIST OF THE GRADUATES.

The second annual commencement of the College of Liberal Arts of the University of Louisville was held at Macauley's Theater last night.

The exercises were presided over by Dr. H. C. Tolman, who delivered the principal address.

The graduates of the college were as follows:

First, Miss Helen Spurgeon Ward, Miss Inga Werners and Edward Thomas.

The degree of bachelor of arts was conferred upon the following:

Misses Frances Smith, Elizabeth Rhodes Johnston, Hadley Blanch Knight, Elizabeth McConathy, Mattie Belle Scott and Anna Voss.

Under the patron of Prof. Karl Schmid the orchestra won much applause with splendid selections from several of the old operas.

Address To Students.

The address to the students was delivered by Dr. H. C. Tolman, D. D., professor of Greek in Vanderbilt University.

He spoke on "Educational Ideals."

A king once decreed that he would declare by royal proclamation that subject who should be crowned king of the State.

On the appointed day there assembled the king and his great council.

Councillors of state were there and war-scarred heroes who had brought glory to the crown.

But it was on none of these the monarch looked. Hidden in the embrasure of a window he spied one who had been forgotten in that brilliant and crowded hall.

It was the best form of his old schoolmate, Dr. Tolman.

He had been in the hands of the people the monarch's voice was heard: "Behold him who has done the greatest service to the state, for he has saved your king."

So if one to-day should point out the influence which make a city or a nation truly strong they would be shown to the student of the University of Louisville the city and college. They are the city's bulwark and towers; our nation's safeguard and towers.

The glory of the cities of the old world are the universities founded at the beginning of the national growth. We must speak the names of Padua, Heidelberg, Vienna, Prague, and our thoughts dwell not on ancient capitals, but on the light and culture which have been shed from these centers throughout the world.

The city of Louisville has reorganized the university which bears its name. The institution will doubtless be worthy of the name which it bears.

It is a broad university, and the city will be worthy of the university only when it gives to it its generous and sympathetic support.

A Sign Manual.

A speaker on a commencement day which marks the reorganization of an old institution casts about for a sign manual whose spirit may be emblazoned on the college walls as an incentive to the highest and best educational ideal.

Such a motto, at once comprehensive and concrete, I saw in the terms of the double portal of a school house which nestled under the gigantic bow of Mount Placid.

On the one side were the words, "Lern um zu leben," "learn so as to live," on the other, "Leben um zu lernen," "live so as to learn," a significant watch-word for every institution dedicated to genuine culture.

Education is not what we have learned, but how we are learning to-day, to-morrow and forever. It is the standard of the greatest scholar is the humblest of men, for he is in a position to appreciate the field of knowledge outside of the province of his investigation or even his observation.

It is not to know, but to know that we do not know. It is not to know that we do not know, but to know that we do not know that we do not know.

From that condition of not knowing that we do not know, Education is a long process and it rests upon us whether we will allow it to be operative in our lives. The educational process depends entirely on the keen perception of and implicit obedience to great natural laws. Let us look at these of those laws with which educated life must be in perfect harmony.

First—Struggle. We call it in Darwinian phraseology the survival of the fittest. We call it in the terms of Aristotle the doctrine of the ends. But the problem was summed up twenty-five centuries ago by the philosopher, Aeschylus in two words, pathos mathos, "suffering wisdom." We do well to remember that education is not an accumulation of facts, but a process of growth. It is the human intelligence to the level of the intellect, but it is the intellect which produces what is put into it. Human intelligence is destined for a far higher function than the mere accumulation of facts, which is the duty of the intellect.

Charles Kendall Adams, the President of Wisconsin, once said to me: "The educated man is not he who knows the most, but he who knows best where to find and how to use the information which he desires." And recently Prof. Paulsen, of Berlin in an epoch-making work has defined education as the long and arduous struggle toward personal culture.

A Long Struggle.

It is a struggle from the first observation of the babe to the mature thought of the scholar. We may divide the educational life into three epochs. First, voluntary choice; second, habit; third, character. As an example, let us take the acquisition of truth. First comes the desire to know, then the habit of seeking the truth, then the character which repeats the habit, and the man is a truly speaking and truth-thinking man. But vast the gulf between this stage and the final consummation, character. It is character that habit is crystallized into, and the man becomes not simply a truth-speaking man, but a truth-thinking man.

While our college at this early period of its existence has no complete laboratory of its own, still the good laboratory of the medical department and the private laboratory of the law school are at the disposal of all candidates for the Masters' Degree, and the laboratory of the law school is at the disposal of all candidates for the Masters' Degree.

PROGRAMME OF FIFTEENTH ANNUAL MEET OF KENTUCKY FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

Harrodsburg, Ky., June 5.—(Special.)—The fifteenth annual meeting of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in Owensboro on June 8, 9, 10 and 11, and promises to be one of the most interesting and profitable in the history of the organization. Mrs. Letcher Riker, president of the State Federation, has completed the arrangements for the programme for the coming meeting, and it is pronounced to be a most excellent one.

The federation was organized in 1894 in Lexington and the first annual meeting was held in Richmond the following year. In 1896 it met in Versailles; 1897 in Harrodsburg; 1898 in Louisville; 1899 in Frankfort; 1900 in Covington; 1901 in Bowling Green; 1902 in Paris; 1903 in Lexington; 1904 in Franklin; 1905 in Cynthiana; 1906 in Mt. Harrison, Lexington; recording secretary, Miss Lillian Lindsey, Frankfort; corresponding secretary, Miss Haldon Helm Hardin, Harrodsburg; treasurer, Mrs. H. C. Muir, Nicholasville; Mail Secretary, Mrs. Frank Lowry, Paris; Federation secretary, Mrs. Charles P. Weaver, Louisville.

To Elect Successor To Mrs. Riker.

Mrs. Riker has been president for two years and a successor to her will be elected this year. The election of the chief executive always excites a lively interest, and it is understood there will be several candidates for this honor at the coming meeting. Mrs. Riker and Miss Haldon Helm Hardin, of Harrodsburg, the corresponding secretary, will leave Sunday night for Owensboro to be present at the opening of the meeting, which begins on Tuesday night, at which time a reception will be given in honor of Mrs. Riker and Mrs. Philip N. Moore, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and other guests at the Ruid House, at which place the business sessions of the federation will be held. # TRIBUTE OF LOVE

Status of Gen. Stephen L. Lee At Vicksburg.

UNVEILING CEREMONIES TO BE HELD JUNE 11.

HENRY WATTERSON TO PRE-SIDE, GEN. EVANS TO SPEAK.

GEN. GRANT TO BE PRESENT.

Vicksburg, Miss., June 3.—On June 11, the day following the close of the United Confederate Veterans' reunion at Memphis, many of the old soldiers and other notables will assemble here to attend the unveiling of a statue of the late Gen. Stephen Dill Lee, who was commander-in-chief of the Confederate organization at the time of his death.

It was in the siege of Vicksburg that Gen. Lee won his spurs as a dashing and intrepid commander, and the last years of his life were devoted to the perfection of the great national military park here. Gen. Lee died at Vicksburg May 28, 1908, and it is peculiarly fitting that the South's memorial statue to him should be erected on the spot which he loved so well.

On the same day another monument to his memory, though smaller in size, will be unveiled at the State Agricultural and Mechanical College at Starkville, Miss., as he was the first president of that institution. This memorial, though of lesser importance than the Vicksburg statue, nevertheless emphasizes the universal affection of the people of Mississippi for him. Another monument will be placed at the grave in Columbus, where the old commander sleeps in everlasting rest.

Gen. Grant To Attend.

North, South, East and West will send celebrities to do honor to the memory of the chivalrous soldier of Dixie. Maj. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, of the Department of the Lakes, has been designated by the Secretary of War to receive the statue on the part of the United States, which will be officially presented to him by Gen. Clement A. Evans, of Georgia, Commander-in-Chief of the United Confederate Veterans. Col. George R. Peck, of Chicago, will be orator of the day, and Henry Waterson, editor of the Courier-Journal, will be master of ceremonies and preside at the auspicious occasion.

Many of the surviving Generals of the Confederacy and other eminent men will be present. Secretary of War Jacob M. Dickinson, who was a fellow-townsmen of Gen. Lee at Columbus, has expressed his keenest regrets that official duties would prevent him from being present. The well-known sculptor, Henry Hudson Kitson, of Quincy, Mass., who designed the statue, will be present to direct the placing of his handiwork. He is the creator of many handsome monuments of various Northern States already completed and dedicated in the Vicksburg National Military Park. In his work he knew General Lee, then one of the park commissioners, and put his best efforts into this statue.

Ceremonies In Afternoon.

The unveiling of the monument will take place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon in the National Military Park. Hospitable Vicksburg will welcome thousands of Mississippians and Louisianians within her gates. Governors Noel, of Mississippi, and Sanders, of Louisiana, with their respective staffs, will be present and the division officers of the Confederate Organization will arrive from Memphis on the morning of June 11.

Already the Vicksburg people have thrown heart and soul into the work of assisting in the exercises. In an effort to make it one of the most memorable occasions since the siege of the historic city, Citizens' committees have arranged for every detail, the local military companies will fire salutes and hundreds of school children will join in patriotic songs. The statue is of life-size and represents General Lee in a moment of triumph after one of his victories in a skirmish about Vicksburg. It stands on a pedestal in the Military Park near the Alabama and Vicksburg railroad on a commanding eminence. He was then in the full development of young manhood and the pose is both noble and heroic. The statue cost $100. It is a rebirth of affection from his only son, Blewett Lee, of Chicago, Capt. William R. Rigby, chairman of the Vicksburg Military Park Committee, and hundreds of veterans of the South, who followed the late General in battle and others who admired him.

Learned To Love Lee.

Rigby, although a Northern soldier, born in Iowa, was associated with Gen. Lee when the latter was chairman of the Park Commission. In constant association he grew to love the modest Southern hero whose declining years were devoted to cementing the ties of brotherhood between the North and the South.

A little time before his death, Gen. Lee, Capt. Rigby, Col. John C. Everett, of Chicago, three members of the park commission, were making inspection of the beautiful park when they reached the railroad redoubt where Gen. Lee's greatest victory was won. They stood upon this eminence Capt. Rigby went to Gen. Lee and asked him to stand again upon the spot where he had directed the movements of his troops, explaining to him that years later, when he had passed away, he wanted a monument erected upon the very spot to commemorate his triumph. Gen. Lee turned to the request and said: "Rigby, you are all very good to me." Capt. Rigby marked the spot, and it is there the statue will stand forever as a memorial.

Among the features of the statue fund was former President Roosevelt, who admired Gen. Lee.

Gen. Lee's Life.

Gen. Stephen Dill Lee was born at Charleston, S. C., September 22, 1835, and spent his boyhood in the Carolinas. He was graduated from West Point in 1854 as First Lieutenant of artillery. He was assigned to the Fourth United States Artillery and was connected with that arm of the military service until he resigned in 1861 to cast his fortunes with the South, to whose cause he offered his heart and sword.

He was one of the two officers sent by Gen. Beauregard to demand the surrender of Fort Sumter, and when the fort was refused, commanded the nearest water battery to open fire. He was Captain in Hampton's Legion, where he served until November, 1861, when he was commissioned Major of artillery, and in 1862 was appointed Lieutenant Colonel and gained distinction at Seven Pines and the battle of the Wilderness. The Pope campaign in 1862 he was promoted to be a Colonel and that year he was appointed a Brigadier General. President Jefferson Davis and assigned to duty in the Western division of the Confederate States.

He was thereafter engaged in all the campaigns and movements that preceded the investment and fall of Vicksburg. After the surrender at Vicksburg he was paroled and later exchanged. In the latter part of 1863 he was named Major General and the following year was made Lieutenant General, being given command of the Department of Arkansas, Alabama, Tennessee and Eastern Louisiana, and at the close of the war was campaigning in North Carolina.

After the war he was elected to State Senator from Lowndes county, Mississippi, where he made his home. He resigned from that position to become the first president of the Agricultural and Mechanical College at Starkville. He retired from this position when commissioned a member of the Vicksburg National Military Park by President McKinley, and became chairman of that body. He led a busy and active life in connection with the perfection of the great park system of which he was one of the founders.

ANNUAL REPORT ON THE AMERICA INLAND MISSION.

The Rev. Edward O. Guernsey, of Wilmore, Ky., president of the America Inland Mission, has submitted his annual report as follows:
God has added another year of blessing to the soul winners' work among the long-neglected people in the mountains. To all those whom God has honored with a share in this mission we gladly make this report. In spite of financial depression, He has graciously raised up friends in many lands, and supplied all of their needs. To Him be all the glory.
During the year ending March 31, 1909, our treasurer, Maj. Robert S. Bullock, received $11,425.85 and paid out $10,880.27. Not a collection was taken in any church, and every salary was paid at the end of every month. During the year a new college was built in the Cumberland mountains in the mountains of Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia. Besides these, ten churches, schools and mission houses were built, and over eighty faithful evangelists were employed in the collection of the mountains. We have received the means to build another large dormitory at the Highland College, by the kind of a noble woman of Georgia. Another devoted woman of Kentucky devoted the interest on her white estate (of some $25,000) to the support of the soul winners' mission work. Our new orphan asylum, the gift of another good woman, is in successful operation, under a most capable woman, who gives her service freely. But time would fail to enumerate the results of the past year's work. Eleven years ago we began this work with one evangelist and $250. Behold what God hath wrought! He alone has been our dependence, and to Him be all the glory.

In all our efforts we have had the generous assistance of the press, which we gratefully acknowledge. We have no agents and no place in church collections. God sent us every dollar by the hands of His children in many lands, who had compassion on these multitudes in the mountains without a shepherd. We thank them God will reward them. During the year a number of our missions have enjoyed gracious revivals, in which over 1,700 persons professed conversion. their fellowmen. There are yet thousands of them perishing beyond our farthest missions in the great Alleghany and Cumberland mountains. We are your servants to carry the Gospel to them. No agency can do this work more economically. A distinguished minister said: "The Society of Soul Winners is doing the most and best work, with the least money, of any missionary society on earth, so far as I know."
One dollar will put the Soul Winner Journal into five homes for a year; $10 a month will support a good teacher; $25 a month will support a man and his wife; $250 will build a church or mission house; $4,000 will build a dormitory for the orphan boys which is greatly needed. Can you put God's money to a better use? All your possessions are "His goods," for which you must give an account. And these are your neighbors whom you are commanded to love. Their condition should appeal to all who love God and

The shadows are swept away. May God help you to hear. Hear Him say: "Come, ye. Adieu, I inherit the kingdom. You, for I was hungered, and meat." With gratitude to all our begging your prayers and your humble servants.

Prices Below the Actual Cost To Import.

Feather trimming for fashionable head dress is at the present time more in popular favor than ever before. The early season styles have entirely changed from the deep mushroom shapes to the side roll or large Gainesborough effect which is particularly adapted to the use of plumes; in fact, it really necessitates them. When the first intimation of this decided change in style was flashed from Paris to our New York representative, he immediately went into the market and purchased this entire surplus stock, especially for Louisville. The entire lot will be offered Monday at prices actually less than the present cost to import.

Genuine Kentucky Welcome Ready For the Shriners.

Something of How the Gigantic Task of Preparing It Has Been Done—Good Team Work
By the Nobles.

KOSAIR PATROL, WHICH WILL BE ON ESCORT DUTY FROM NOON TO-DAY UNTIL NOON TUESDAY.

SOME OF THE MEN WHO LANDED THIS WEEK'S GATHERING FOR LOUISVILLE.

WHEN the lights are turned, fight the Kentucky Nobles had on hand. They won with odds against them, and therefore the victory was all the sweeter. The members of the Imperial Council Committee appointed by Kosair were: Messrs. John M. Scott, John Hixton, Charles B. Norton, R. S. Brown, James P. Gregory, Sam P. Jones and James B. Camp. Mr. Jones was unable to make the journey to St. Paul. Joining with these champions of Louisville were Messrs. John H. Cowles, William H. Bartholomew, Thomas S. Tuley and James P. Gregory, the duly elected delegates to the Imperial Council from Kosair. Judge Gregory appeared with the delegation both as a delegate to the Imperial Council and as a member of the committee appointed expressly to bring the session here. After the committee's return and the rejoicing over its success was over, the Nobles of Kosair bestirred themselves to see what should be done in the way of entertaining the city's guests.

A national Shrine session is a coveted thing of many cities. This week there doubtless will be many applicants for the honor of entertaining the session of 1910. Two cities have been vigorously in the field for weeks. One is New Orleans, which wants the annual session in May, 1910, and the other is Richmond, Va., which will ask for next June's gathering.

The meeting this week will be the second that has been held south of Mason and Dixon's line since the beginning of annual sessions on June 6, 1876. The first meeting was held in Masonic Hall in New York. The break to the Southland did not come until June, 1898, when Dallas, Tex., was given the honor. The dates of the thirty-four sessions preceding the Louisville meeting and the cities in which they were held are as follows:

June 6, 1876, New York City.
February 6, 1877, Albany, N. Y.
February 6, 1878, New York City.

After a vote on the part of Kosair Temple, the local organization, a committee was sent to St. Paul last June to get the 1909 meeting. Other cities were in the field, and it was a vigorous committee; William H. Bartholomew, chairman ladies' committee; Sid J. Gates, chairman transportation committee; W. B. Trumbo, Jr., chairman music committee; James B. Camp, chairman entertainment committee; Fred W. Hardwick, chairman badges and souvenir committee; C. R. Williams, chairman printing committee; Frank H. Johnson, chairman hotel committee; John J. Telford, chairman decoration committee; George F. Simpson, chairman medical committee; A. Scott Bullitt, chairman ball committee; W. T. Solger, chairman refreshment committee.

Hard and systematic work has been done during the months passed by all committees, and the duties, of course, have increased as the date of the annual session drew nearer. Weekly meetings were held by the executive committee, and reports were received by the chairman of the other committees. About three months in advance of the annual session each chairman was called upon to estimate the past and probable future expenditures of his committee, and the total estimates were compared with the funds on hand and prospective receipts. It was found that the work had been so well conducted that receipts and expenditures were keeping in parallel channels, and the executive committee has come to the annual session in that favorable attitude of apparently having in sight funds for all requirements.

Full of Enthusiasm.

Speaking recently, Chairman Fehr declared: "Inspired with the enthusiastic spirit which characterized the committee sent after the convention, the executive committee in conjunction with the many subordinate committees, under the guiding hand of Kosair Temple, labored industriously for months to perfect the extensive and elaborate plans formulated for the occasion. It was the intention to make this meeting pre-eminently the most famous ever recorded in the annals of shrine meetings, and this determination caused the various committees entrusted with the difficult but pleasant task to work like Trojans. It is a source of great gratification, therefore, to every member of Kosair Temple to feel that their efforts have been crowned with such unqualified success as now seems assured for the meeting."

Some of the committees came up to the convention opening with their work practically completed, while others will find their most strenuous days in the period while visitors are here. The Imperial Council committee has had in charge the task of arranging for the meeting of the distinguished body in whose honor the week's festivities are given. The Imperial Council deliberates only once a year, and then for not long. It is made up of a group of thirteen officers, a number of life members, and, ordinarily, four Imperial representatives from each of the 113 temples in the United States, Canada and Mexico. There is usually an attendance at the Imperial Council official meeting of about 400 nobles. The first and open session of the body this year will be held in the Armory, with the Mayor of Louisville and the Governor of Kentucky delivering addresses of welcome. The response will be made by Edwin L. Alderman, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., Imperial potentate of the shriners. Immediately following this meeting, the Imperial Council will move in a body across the street to Scottish Rite Cathedral, which the committee in special charge of this work has equipped with appropriate decorations and provided with all conveniences for the big body. There will be but two sessions of the Imperial Council, adjournment being taken on Tuesday to Wednesday, and at the close of the latter day's meeting the council will adjourn for the year. It will consider applications of new temples for charters, will revise such rules and regulations of the order as it may see fit, will elect officers and select next year's meeting place. The headquarters of the Imperial Council are located in The Seelbach, and the proximity of its meeting place to the headquarters is an indication of the care to which the Imperial Council committee has gone in its efforts to cater to every convenience of the supreme body.

quarters for all local committees which will be engaged during the week. These have all been put in the Armory, different rooms being used for different committees. Another subcommittee was detailed the task of arranging and carrying out the registration of nobles. Great care will be taken in this matter. Every Shriner, both from Louisville and outside cities, will be required to register. At the time he will be given a copy of the official souvenir programme. Shriners will also register for the ladies' Manual Training School. In addition a general citizens' and auxiliary information committee has been arranged for. This body will number about 7,500 residents of Louisville, for whom the committee has provided tags bearing the inscription, "Ask Me, I Live Here." It is intended that every facility shall be put at the hand of the visitor to easily find his way about the city.

Raising the Money.

While there was no general solicitation of funds, yet the finance committee was one of the first organized, and has been kept busy at work for months. The chairman of the committee divided his co-workers into various groups, who handled different branches of the work, from looking after assessments of Kosair Temple members to solicitation of funds from the city, the street railway company and the hotels. Three or four important subdivisions were made of the headquarters and information committee. One of these had charge of the selection of head-committee has spent weeks in preparing for the payment of the Shriners on Tuesday night, and this promises to be the most spectacular parade ever given in Louisville. It has also fallen to the lot of this handling of convention workers to provide for the regimental review of patrols which will take place Wednesday afternoon at Douglas Park race track and for the exhibition drills which will take place in the Armory Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning.

To Look After Women Royally.

It is needless to say the Shriners have not forgotten the women. A committee of a dozen or more well-known men, supplemented by a ladies' auxiliary of over 100 members, has mapped out the programme of entertainment for the wives and daughters of visiting Shriners. There is every reason to believe that Kentucky's reputation for gallantry as well as hospitality will be thoroughly maintained. Every attention possible will be shown to the visiting women, and two or three features of the week's programme have been designed primarily in their honor. One of the committees which started earliest in its work was the promotion committee. It sought the thorough exploitation of the event both at home and abroad. Under the auspices of this committee a particularly handsome invitation was sent out by the executive committee to the Nobility of America. It was a beautiful six-color letterpress containing Kosair's cordial invitation to the Shrine of America. ## Low Railroad Fares.

Splendid rates on account of the meeting have been given by the railroad. This result was brought about by the transportation committee. The matter was early brought to the attention of the leading passenger associations, and the concessions were better than ordinarily given for similar meetings. One of the noteworthy features in connection with the transportation arrangements has been the elimination of the joint validating agent so far as all lines save those in the Southeastern Passenger Association are concerned. Shriners will purchase signature tickets for the journey to Louisville and they will not be compelled to wait in line before a haughty joint agent when they get ready to return to their homes. In the case of the Southeastern Passenger Association lines it has been found necessary to retain the validating agent because of numerous requests for extension of the time limit on tickets. The transportation committee has also looked after the expeditious handling of the baggage of incoming nobles and their ladies, and weeks in advance of the meeting tags and stickers for use on the baggage were sent to each temple so that there will be practically no delay whatever in passing the crowds through the gates of the railroad stations and ferrying them to their hotels, their luggage following promptly in their wake.

There will be probably a score of bands brought by the visiting patrols and practically every available band and drum corps in Louisville and vicinity has been engaged through the music committee for some visiting body. It was also through this committee that arrangements were made for the mobilized band concert which will take place following the automobile races on Wednesday afternoon.

Planning Entertainments.

One of the hardest working committees has been that on entertainment. Aside from the parade and grand ball almost all features of the entertainment have been arranged under the auspices of this body of workers. The committee numbers almost 100 members and has been divided into seven or eight sub-committees, each in charge of some Shrine week function. Some of the more important events given under the immediate auspices of this committee were decided upon early in the session, but features were from time to time added until it will probably be regarded as the busiest annual session, so far as entertainment goes, that has ever been held. Only about three weeks prior to the meeting it was determined to add automobile races to the list of attractions. With this important addition, every morning, afternoon and evening while the Shriners are here has been provided with a main event and numerous side attractions.

The badges and souvenir committees had no small task on their hands and everybody was right to be so well and generously decorated with badges. For the four or five hundred members of the various committees an information badges has been obtained, the committee being designated by different color of ribbon. The committee adopted the official souvenir badge and closed a contract with a concessionaire for the handling of it. The committee also adopted an exchange badge to be purchased by Nobles who will want to purchase the emblem to their friends. Appropriate souvenirs have also been selected for the members of patrols who participate in the exhibition drills and each patrol will also receive a handsome loving cup.

Many To Sleep In Cars.

It has been through the hotel committee that the nearest approach to an estimate of how many visitors the city will entertain during the week has been

Costly Decorations.

It is said that the decorations in honor of the Shriners have cost almost $20,000. This represents the expenditures made under the direction of the entertaining forces and does not take into consideration sums spent by the citizens in individual decoration. It was the announced purpose of the decoration committee to go out along highways and the fantastic emblems and gorgeous colors of the Shrine organization have made easier rather than more difficult the big task ahead of this committee. While it falls to the lot of some committees to have little to show the general public as the result of their labors, yet this rule is completely reversed in the case of the decoration committee. How hard and well it has worked has been partially in evidence in the decorations which have adorned the streets for the past several days and will be shown in completeness when the lights are turned on and when the public is admitted to the Armory, the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home and other places which have been touched by the magic hand of this committee.

Four Extra Ambulances.

The medical committee has taken every precaution, it is claimed, for the safety and comfort of visitors. The Government was called upon for four ambulances which have been supplied by the depot at Jeffersonville and a number of tents were also placed at the disposal of the committee by Uncle Sam. These will be located at Cherokee Park where the "Attack on Fort Boonesboro" will take place, and at Douglas Park race track where the automobile races, regimental review and big band concert will be held. The ball committee and refreshment committee were the last two bodies to be appointed under the direction of the executive committee. The former reported two weeks in advance of this meeting that everything was in readiness for the grand ball which is to furnish the social event of the week. It fell to the lot of the refreshment committee to prepare the luncheon which will be given by the local committee to the Imperial Council Tuesday, and to prepare refreshments for the various functions during the week at which it is proposed to serve the visitors with meat and drink.

ORIGINAL POEM.

If you have a sweetheart
In the home far away;
Sit you down and write his letter
You put off from day to day;
Don't wait till his weary steps
Reach heaven's pearly gate;
But show him that you think of him
Before it is too late.

If you have a tender message
Or a loving word to say;
Don't wait till you forget it,
But whisper it to him today;
Who knows what bitter memories
May haunt you if you wait;
So make your heart and one happy
Before it is too late.

The tender words unspeakable,
The letter never sent,
The long-forgetful message,
The wealth of love unspent;
For these his heart is breaking;
For these his eyes are wet;
Show him that you care for him
Before it is too late.

Dear Editor: I am sending you the answer to "Women's Wearing Apparel" and hope I will be as fortunate as several of my schoolmates were. I will be in a dancing entertainment at Macaulay's Theater next Thursday evening. This month at school I expect to get my old place back in the class. I was sick eight days last month and my average was not so good, although I have never gotten "F" in my life. The class is arranged according to our monthly averages.

A Tiger Hunt In Calcutta.

By PATRICK BOOTH.

In order to explain how a tiger hunt was possible at Calcutta in the year 1880, it will be necessary to take my readers back to the year 1858, and all the way to the Kingdom of Oudh.

All that year, Oudh's last king, Wajid Ali Shah, was being driven from his kingdom by the British government, and he was driven to Calcutta, because he would not behave himself.

A long range of handsome buildings, each standing in its own large garden, was put at his disposal, and he was allowed a royal income, most of which went on what we would term today the most expensive of all perhaps being his menagerie. It was in connection with this menagerie that our tiger hunt took part.

A very fine pair of these animals had been captured somewhere up country, and promptly purchased by his majesty, who was always on the lookout for such opportunities, or to put it more correctly perhaps, his was a well-known market.

The "dens" formed a long, high and broad wall, parallel with the Hooghly River, enclosing on one side the palace gardens, into which the doors opened, and at times did not close again, as was the case with the other dens.

Robert Browning wrote this story for little boy named Willie to make it clear that if he promised anything, no matter large or small, he must keep his promise.

SCOTLAND'S THISTLE.

This is the story of how the thistle came to be the badge of Scotland. When the Danes invaded the country a night surprise was attempted. In order to move completely hidden their advance the Danish soldiers walked barefoot. For a while all went well, till one of the Danes happened to tread on a thistle. The pain made him cry out, and the thistle disclosed the fact of the intended assault. The Scots at once took to their arms, and routed the invaders. The thistle thereafter became the national emblem.

he had continued his, so far, useless search, in which I now joined him.

For two long hours we wandered about scrutinizing every bit of cover, in vain, and at last the grey dawn crept through the thick foliage, and just as the sun rose, two shots rang out on the still morning air, and hurrying along we met two military officers who informed us that the hunt was over.

We were too much chagrined to enter into conversation with our successful rivals, as we considered them, and, proceeding, soon reached the place where Hill the previous night had laid his trap, which was his own property, as he had purchased both the bullock and the materials for the matchan.

There lay the tiger in all his beauty, and a magnificent fellow he was, despite a bullet hole between his eyes, and another in his side. There also stood the tethered bullock with its patient eyes, the deep scars on his poor lean shoulders showing where the tiger had struck him when he sprang.

The story is not a pretty one to tell, but I give no names, and the magistrate of the district, with whom the two officers had been dining, had come to hear of the trap Hill had laid, and after that gentleman left had come along, turned away the native police and taken possession of the platform. The police were not to be trusted.

"Magistrate Sahib," about midnight the moon shining almost as clear as daylight on the bullock in the open shade, the tiger had suddenly sprung on the animal, presenting his head far to the watchers, when the representative of the law shot him between the eyes, killing him on the spot. This was the shot Hill had heard.

REDDY BURKE'S QUEER RIDE.

By Marston Follough-Pogut.

THE village of Saint Ginguolph on Iron Lake was bounded on the east by a great forest of hardwood, spruce and pine.

Near the eastern edge of the forest, late in the afternoon in the first week of September, when the weather was baking hot and the woods were tinder dry, a fire started in a stealthy way in the thick mattress of pine needles and made of the stings of a hundred years.

Slowly and silently the creeping fire widened, widened and spread out, stealing, stealing and presently it reached up and gently touched the dead, drooping branch of a big spruce.

The next moment, when Reddy Burke the Standard Lumber Company's fire-ranger, swung open the door of his little log cabin in the middle of the forest and looked eastward over the pinetops he saw the keys of flame rising skyward through rolling smoke clouds.

An hour before noon the yellow, pungent smoke began to swirl into Saint Ginguolph.

"You have now come to understand our language very well, and I can talk to you as I could not before. I know that you are lonely and wish to get back to your own country. If it rested with me, I would let you go to-morrow, but there are men who would cry out against it, and say that I was no longer fit to rule. You have seen much and heard much since being here. Tell me what you have seen and heard."

THE TATTOOED BOY.

Or, Three Years Among the Cannibals.

THE cannibal chief whose life Tom Carew had saved had promised to have a long talk with him some day, but it was to be a long "some day" before the time came.

What the chief did do, though Tom could not tell how it came about, was to order the fattest of the islanders to be only for an hour a day, and that it should not go above the boy's head. He was a strong man and a brave man, and he was also a cunning man.

There were things going on around him that Tom Carew did not at all understand. He had been chief of Bougainville for ten years. He had got his place by depositing another chief. He was a strong man and a brave man, and he was also a cunning man.

MILLIONAIRES' MARATHON TO RECALL ENGLAND'S OLD DAYS

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)
LONDON, May 27.—It is already pretty certain that the coaching Marathon to take place here, June 14, will be the most brilliant event of the season, and like that it will be almost as much of an American event as if Madison Square in New York instead of the Olympic in London were to be the goal. Everybody calls it the Millionaires' Marathon, and without much exaggeration either, for of the eighteen competitors so far announced, many are millionaires even in the English sense, which calls for a $5,000,000 admission fee to millionaire rank. Alfred Vanderbilt, more than anyone else, is, of course, responsible for the revival of the gorgeous old coaching days of England. Both of the coaches which he is now running daily on the Brighton road have been entered, and it is stated that one or the other of them stands a good chance to win the cup. Mr. Vanderbilt's keenest competitor will be Senor Martinez de Hoz, a famous Argentine horse breeder who has been running a coach for a couple of years on the old road from London to Guildford, in order to show Englishmen what Argentine horses, bred from English stock, can do.

Several more entries are expected before the closing day. So far the full list of competitors is as follows: Alfred G. Vanderbilt, of New York (two coaches); Walter Winans, Paul Sorg, of New York; Judge Moore, of ably require a good deal of repairing before it is to take part in the Marathon run. If its present owners are induced to enter it, it is likely that Walter Godden, who was Jim Selby's guard, and who was in charge on the memorable Brighton run, will be induced to emerge from his retirement and sound the horn again on the road between Hampton Court and London. Walter Godden was Mr. Vanderbilt's guard on the Brighton road last year, but this year his increasing age and infirmities compelled him to retire. He has often declared, however, that only death could prevent him from taking charge of the "Old Times" if there ever were a chance again.

No such coaching spectacle, as will be provided by this race, has been seen in the world since the day of Jim Selby's funeral in 1888. Mr. Selby was the last link with the old time coaches which held possession of the roads of England in the days before the railways, and at his funeral every coach on the roads turned out in his honor. About thirty coaches, with drivers in old-fashioned cords and top hats and guards in uniform, and armed with whips, followed the hearse through the London streets to Hampton cemetery, and thirty guards blew a farewell salute on their horns over his grave. After that the decline of coaching, even as a sport, was rapid, and it had practically died out when it was revived by Mr. Vanderbilt last year.

Walter Godden is probably the last living link with the old coaching times. The old man still loves to talk of the days before England was spoiled, as he thinks, by the railways, but he loves, most of all, to talk of his old master, Jim Selby, "the best man I ever had," he declares, and though he is loyal to Mr. Vanderbilt, he is not so much of a sportsman as Selby. "They were fine old times," he said to me the other day. "It used to be the event of the day to see 'Old Times' start from Piccadilly. Lords and dukes came to see us start and to bear the wind the horn, and we carried many a one of them, too. There was money on the road in those days, and hundreds of pounds were spent at the inns where we stopped and where we changed horses. Now all they get is a few cyclists after a glass of beer."

It is said that if the "Old Times" really takes the road again with Walter Godden in charge, the successors and descendants of those who traveled with him in the old days will mark the occasion by doing something handsome for the old guard.

Walter Godden has a great admiration for the Americans who have done so much to revive coaching in England. "They know what a good horse is," he said, "and they are not tied up to stinking automobiles like a lot of our people in England. Lord love you, how can a man take to driving an old steam-kettle instead of a horse, that knows every word you say to him and understands every note of the horn? Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Sorg, and Judge Moore all know a good horse and love him, but there are a lot of people here who have forgotten what their fathers ought to have taught them, and have gone in for the old tin kettles."

American Gives Trophy.

It is appropriate that an American should be the donor of the prize for this, the greatest coaching event of the year, or, in fact, of the century so far as it goes in England or any other country.

far as it has gone in England or any other country. The American who has presented a magnificent gold cup worth $500, which is now being made by Percy Edwards, of Philadelphia, is to be the first prize. The second prize will be $150 in cash, the third prize will be the gates of the horse show arena at Olympia, and each coach, as it arrives, will enter the arena and drive round it in state. The King will be present and will hand Mr. Vanderbilt's gold cup to the winner.

Every competitor who does not finish within an hour and a half of starting time will be disqualified and each coach must carry seven persons, including a representative of the show. There must be no change of horses or drivers on the road, and it is expected that, in the case of Dinizulu, the Zulu chief, Brockbank at least, the winners will drive their own coaches.

Speed will not be the only quality considered in judging the race. The quality of the horses, their condition on arriving, the coach and its equipment and the suitability and condition of the harness will all be taken into account by the judges, who will also consider whether or not the coaches have been regularly used on the road up to the day of the competition.

In spite of the declaration of the judges I am informed that the race will be a hard gallop all the way. The American who has presented the trophy is expected to take place would soon attract the attention of the English police, so to avoid any interference the other conditions have been laid down in the public announcements.

The road will be kept clear by representatives of the horse show in motor cars. This has caused a little criticism by horse lovers who suggested that mounted men in scarlet and cords would be more suitable for such an essentially "horsey" event as this, but it is explained that much of the traffic to be dealt with will be motor cars for which task horses would not be suitable.

The coaching marathon is, of course, the event which is attracting most attention, but Americans will be well represented in the other departments of the horse show. Judge Moore, of New York, is bringing over forty-eight horses and fourteen carriages, and Mr. Vanderbilt is bringing over to upholster his loose boxes with hammer cloth, trimmed with gold. It is stated that at least $200,000 will be spent by exhibitors in the upholstery and decoration of the horse boxes.

ENGLISH WOMEN SPEND FORTUNE IN DEFENSE OF BLACK CHIEFTAIN.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)
LONDON, May 27.—The women of Natal are at present engaged in fighting the whole force of the British Government. The battle waged by the Misses Colenso—two sisters—is carried on without visible signs of outward warfare, and yet it is a struggle as daring, as strenuous and as adventurous as any war of the kind. Embarked on a quixotic attempt to rescue the native chief, Dinizulu, from the coils of British diplomacy, they have spent almost every cent they had in the world.

For the last five years the eldest sister, Harriet, has been the guide, philosopher and friend of the native chief, even going to St. Helena and staying there near him while he waited in prison until his efforts got him out. The chief was freed through him to be tried and re-convicted on another count. The devotion of the Colenso sisters to the cause of the black man has won for them even the respect of the English foreign office wire-pullers who wish to turn the land of Dinizulu over to white exploiters.

In many quarters of the globe the fight waged by the Colenso sisters has evoked the sympathy of thousands of people who have not even stopped to consider the actual merits of Dinizulu's case. The sympathy of the English people, including Sir Charles Dilke, Lord Northbourne and Lady Schwann, have recently taken up the cudgels on behalf of the two brave women, and in London an organization has recently been formed to raise funds to restore to them some of the actual money they spent in defense of Dinizulu at his recent trial for alleged high treason.

As a matter of fact, the only charge of which the black chief has been found guilty is harboring a few wretched natives fleeing from British rifles in a failed-up rebellion deliberately planned for the purpose of breaking down the influence of Dinizulu among the natives. The entire movement against Dinizulu is but an attempt on the part of the British to land-grab the countries belonging to the Zulu Nation.

No white people in the whole of South Africa have greater knowledge and experience of the Natal natives than the Colenso sisters. They are the daughters of the famous Bishop Colenso, first and last Bishop of Natal, who devoted his life to studying the needs and ministering to the spiritual wants of the black man.

Would Get Rid of Chief.

Behind the whole Dinizulu prosecution, or rather, persecution, stands the fact that British colonists have always been jealous of his power and influence, and have adopted every subterfuge to rid themselves of the chief and to destroy his power. He has been twice tried for high treason; the first time when but a mere youth, and lastly, for sheltering refugees during the so-called Zulu rebellion. In the earlier prosecution of Dinizulu the British Magistrates had things all their own way. Dinizulu was for a long time unrepresented, and after his first conviction, was sent into exile in St. Helena. It was then that Harriet Colenso began to take an active interest in his case. Without at first employing legal counsel, she obtained from England the papers and convinced herself that all Dinizulu's so-called crimes were trumped-up charges for the express purpose of getting him out of Natal, where the natives look up to him as their great chief and the direct descendant of the famous Cefwayo.

In Landgrabs' Way.

Dinizulu's influence in the country has always been a stumbling block to British land-grabbing; and it has been essential to remove him from the scene of his activities. After his liberation from St. Helena, Miss Colenso undertook his defense against the numerous charges brought against him. She mastered all the native dialects in order to confront opposing witnesses; and her able cross-examination on many occasions utterly put to rout the emissaries of the Government.

Finding it necessary to have Dinizulu properly represented by counsel, Miss Colenso obtained from England some of the ablest lawyers and paid all their expenses out to Natal in order to give the black chief the proper status before the white tribunal. In this supreme effort she spent practically all she had in the world—the sum of $15,000, but her money was well spent, for the long list of alleged heinous crimes with which the chief was charged narrowed down to one of simply giving shelter and food for a few days to the wife and children of Bambata, a disaffected native chief. It was against Dinizulu's assistance in armed rebellion against the British, and that he did not even countenance the action of other native chiefs who wished to rid themselves of British oppression. And yet, on the mere charge of sheltering the women of a tribe, he has been convicted of high treason against the British King; and condemned to four and one-half years of penal servitude, with the loss of his official position in Natal among his own people.

There are altogether about thirty-two square miles of such ground. The company is an American one, and it gets the most of its supplies from the United States. It pays out more than $100,000 a year in salaries to its employees, and its work for the mines amount to $250,000 every twelve months. It is now spending upward of $10,000 for candles used by the miners and $20,000 per annum for dynamite.

There is a great deal of placer mining done by the Korean natives. They are satisfied with small profits, and a man will work at such a mine for a few days or a week where he would not labor steadily in the quartz mines at 25 cents a day. Altogether, the Koreans, however, have proved far less costly as miners than was supposed and the work of two of them is equal to that of one of our men. At the same time they receive only 25 cents a day of ten hours, which would equal a fifty-cent day for the American miner. According to his work if the same rates were employed, the Japanese workmen are paid $1 a day and the Chinese receive 20 cents. The 15 American men paid about $5 a day each, with house rent and board. The company now has five large mines on its concession and over 200 stamps. It is a cyanide plant and it is treating altogether on the average about 1,000 tons of ore daily. The net profit is $155 a ton, so that the mines are making for their quartz works about $15,000 a day. This means almost $90 an hour all day and all night the year through. Think of a property which brings in more than a dollar every minute all the year round and you have some idea of the profits of this big American property away out here on the opposite side of the globe.

In addition to the quartz mines, this company works a lot of bon and copper, which have been worked for centuries, but which will probably pay well under of penal servitude, with the loss of his official position in Natal among his own people.

Judge's Summing Up.

It is difficult to believe that the English could punish Dinizulu in this manner without cause; but even the judge's summing up, which was a masterpiece of the flimsy nature of the entire prosecution. The president of the court, Sir William Stirling, in condemning Dinizulu for high treason, said, among other things:

"It can be said for you in regard to the one offense (that is, giving food and shelter to refugees) that you gave no direct encouragement to these men—Mangochi and Bambata—in continuing their rebellion, and, in my opinion, at no time did you attempt to take part in the rebellion, but people must understand that they cannot touch pitch without being defiled, and that they cannot offer assistance to the king's enemies and claim to be loyal."

Convinced that Dinizulu is perfectly innocent of all the charges brought against him, and fully seeing through the plan of the British Government ultimately to annex Zululand, Miss Colenso left no stone unturned to block the game being played by the colonial authorities who represent England in Zululand. When Dinizulu was brought up for trial at Pietermaritzburg in 1907 it was thought that the Government would have a walk-over and condemn Dinizulu simply out of hand, and his own witnesses. Efforts were made to prevent Miss Colenso from helping him; but, overcoming all difficulties, she showed up at the last moment, and succeeded in confounding the witnesses of the opposition.

In trying to get to Dinizulu on this occasion she was refused passage of the penal servitude, with the loss of his official position in Natal among his own people.

entire families—were rounded up and held in prison. The women often slipped by without the chief having been able to make the necessary points needed for his proper defense.

The Government thought that by following such tactics it would ultimately drive Miss Colenso and her party of sympathizers to despair. But this was far from being the case. Miss Colenso was only further stimulated to action by this unfair treatment. As a matter of fact her hands were actually strengthened, for she thus obtained ample evidence to prove that the whole method of conducting Dinizulu's trial was an unfair one. The first legal counsel brought out from England became so annoyed and impatient over the constant and vexatious delays that he finally threw up his brief in disgust. Not being permitted to take evidence in behalf of his client he returned to England; but only to make damaging statements against the entire procedure so alarmed the officials that they finally permitted Miss Colenso and her legal adviser to have full access to Dinizulu. Another English barrister came out to Natal and he was allowed to see Dinizulu. In the interval, while waiting for the trial—Dinizulu being kept in prison fifteen months awaiting trial—Miss Colenso managed to teach him English. The chief proved himself so apt a pupil that the second lawyer came out he was able to speak with his client in English and to take his evidence without an interpreter.

When the trial came on at Natal, Miss Colenso and her legal adviser to block the game being played by the colonial authorities who represent England in Zululand. When Dinizulu was brought up for trial at Pietermaritzburg in 1907 it was thought that the Government would have a walk-over and condemn Dinizulu simply out of hand, and his own witnesses. Efforts were made to prevent Miss Colenso from helping him; but, overcoming all difficulties, she showed up at the last moment, and succeeded in confounding the witnesses of the opposition.

Miss Brockbank, who is a famous lady whip, may also be reckoned as almost an American. Her sister, Violet, is the wife of George Westinghouse, Jr., of New York and Pittsburgh, and one of the coaches which she has entered is the one in which she drove her sister and her new brother-in-law to and from church on the day of the wedding.

May Run Historic Coach.

An effort is being made to induce Messrs. C. S. Ward & Sons to enter the famous "Old Times" coach, on which the late Jim Selby made his record run from London to Brighton and back in seven hours and fifty-six minutes. Many coaching enthusiasts have tried to beat this record, but no one has ever succeeded in equalling it. The famous old coach has been off the road for many years, and it will probably be a long time before it is again used for such a purpose.

RICH GOLD MINES OF KOREA MAY RIVAL THOSE OF UNITED STATES

By FRANK G. CARPENTER.

SEOUL, May 12.—There is a big mining movement going on in Korea. Prospectors are finding minerals in every part of the peninsula, and concessions for gold, copper, graphite and iron are being granted by the Government under the new mining laws. The long suit of the Colbran & Bostwick Development Company regarding its concession for the Kapsan copper mine, which was settled last year, has so changed the mining regulations that the company can now get clear titles, and they are rapidly taking advantage of this. A number of the new mines are now working, and the prospects for a broad mineral development are bright.

Indeed, Korea may develop into a second California. There is no doubt but that there is gold in many parts of the peninsula. The people have been mining it in the old way for many generations. They have been washing it out of the streams. During my visit to the country twenty years ago, the miners showed me good-quartz filled with gold dust, and during my visit in Seoul in 1894, Thomas W. Power, the electrician from Vancouver, who put up the first light plant in Seoul, told me how he had gotten a soap box filled with over $47,000 worth of gold dust and nuggets in payment of one installment due for his work.

The way it happened was this: Mr. Power contracted with the Korean Government to build a power plant, and all payments were made through the officials, who were very corrupt, and who thought they should have a rake-off from all money which went out of the royal treasury. Mr. Power had gotten his electric light plant running, and the Koreans were operating it. They thought they had all they could get, and concluded to let this young American whistle for his money until he gave a big bribe. The young American, however, realized that his majesty was in deadly fear of assassination, and that he would no longer put up with the officials who were covering up an assassination in the dark. In order to bring matters to a crisis, Mr. Power went back to the plant, and by the disconnection of a screw arranged it so that it would run perfectly without giving light.

About dusk that evening there was great excitement at the palace. The buttons were turned, but the globes would not burn. As it grew darker the Emperor sent his messengers to Mr. Power to ask what was the matter. He replied that he had not had his money, and that the spirits who in the light plant would not burn until he was paid. His majesty thereupon asked why the money had not been sent, and told the corrupt officials that if it was not delivered at once their heads would go off. The result was the soap box of gold dust. Mr. Power told me that the gold was in grains and in nuggets, and he described how Gen. Clarence Greathouse, the Kentuckian who was adviser to the king, and who had had some mining experience in California, went almost crazy as he bent down and laved his hands in it. Some of the nuggets were flat, showing that they had not gone far from the mother lode, and one was as big as the palm of your hand. The gold was sent to the mint at Osaka. It netted in the neighborhood of $50,000, and Power handed back the balance after he had taken out the $47,000 due him. I neglected to say that as soon as he got the gold, the spirits of electricity began to work, and that they are still laboring for his majesty to-day.

Americans After Concessions.

I have an idea that it was Gen. Greathouse who carried this live evidence of the actual existence of gold in great quantities to the United States. At any rate the fact became known abroad, and for the past fifteen years Americans have been after concessions for mines in this country. Among these was James R. Morse, who got the original grant from the Korean government for the district which is now known as that of the Oriental Consolidated Mining Company. This company has by far the biggest gold mines of Korea. It has already taken out $10,000,000 in bullion and its output last year was more than $1,000,000. It is crushing 30

Suggestions For the Housewife.

A WEAK solution of salt and water will brighten mattings.

Kid slippers, belts, gloves and purses are best cleaned by rubbing them with French chalk.

Never forget to dust over the door and window frames when living in a room its thorough weekly cleaning.

White canvas gloves cost only 10 cents apiece, and should belong to every woman who likes to work with her own hands.

Use half-rye and half-wheat bread; rub every rug the same as scrubbing, and when through sweep thoroughly. The rug will be like new.

When veils are washed at home they usually come out quite limber and filmy. To give them stiffness add a pinch of sugar to the rinse water.

Clothes will not dry out so quickly in summer time if sprinkled and packed in a tin tub the night before ironing day. Place a sheet in the tub, pack the clothes as tightly as possible, fold over the sheet corners and cover with a blanket.

Before making gingham or print dresses for the children this spring, soak the material in water containing a tablespoonful of turpentine to each gallon of water. Dry the goods and press, and your little dresses will not fade. This is one very reliable method to "set" cotton goods colors.

The easiest way to clean carved picture frames is to use a small paint brush.

Sponges are great germ collectors. They should be scalded out thoroughly every little while.

A heavy broom lasts longer, but a light broom is best for easy work, and with care a light broom will last almost as long as a more expensive one.

To clean Smyrna rugs brush over the velvet surface a mixture of coarse salt and corn meal, slightly dampened. Brush as if scrubbing, then sweep with a clean broom.

In taking rose slips get a cutting with a part of the hard bark of the grown plant. Put it in a crock of sand and cover with a glass fruit jar. Keep a saucer of water under the crock.

The purple clematis is a more profuse bloomer than the white and, like most flowers of its species, must be placed where it will have plenty of sunshine and air. It seldom blooms well in Northern districts if planted to grow on a house.

If you have one of those immense old halls, give place in it for a davenport and a table of books. It will be one of the comforts of the home during the summer. They call a davenport for halls that is merely plain wood covered with rush or cane. Being light and easily moved, it is very useful. —[Chicago News.]

KOREA'S RICH GOLD MINES.

Northern Korea. The country is covered, however, with great fields of lava, which prevent mining underfoot. The chief copper mines are now around the edges, where the lava has eroded, and this is the character of the Korean property. The mines are situated about a mile above the sea and 120 miles from the coast. They are in the northern part of the peninsula, where the winter climate is very severe. We have to go over two ranges of mountains to reach them, and we shall have to take our machinery in on pack ponies. We shall put up a small smelter right away, beginning our work in the spring, and shall increase our plant as the summer progresses.

"Are these mines extensive?" "Yes, and the copper is rich. They have been worked since a thousand years ago, and with rude native methods have produced something like 300,000 tons of metal since the beginning of the century. The average output is 10 per cent. copper, which is far higher than that of other copper mines. The concession is twenty miles long and thirteen miles wide, and there is copper all over it."

"It originally belonged to the king, and it was one of his principal properties. Mr. Colbrann secured a concession from his majesty to take up a mining property anywhere in the country of the dimensions I have mentioned, and this concession was to include any mines below Russia's border. Mr. Colbrann investigated the Korean region and selected this property. He realized that he would have difficulty in holding it, and when the papers were drawn up he had them signed by the emperor in the presence of his ministers at the palace. He then took them to Washington, where the Korean minister to America affixed his indorsement. Then the war broke out, and the Japanese, having prospecting that the property was theirs, and tried to get Mr. Colbrann's concession aside. The matter was fought over in the courts, and to make a long story short, it has now been settled in Mr. Colbrann's favor."

"There are three great belts here in which copper is found. The Japanese have some mines in the southern part of the country, and the Russians are developing the Kang-ke mines. They have five-foot bands of 7 per cent. copper in their mines, and the value of the ore is $100 a ton. An engineer sent here by one of the big lead pencil companies, which uses so much of that metal, speaks highly of the prospects. Already mines are being opened, the largest of those now in operation being worked by Morris & Co., an American syndicate. The Japanese have a graphite mine near Fusan, from which they are now exporting 500 tons a month. The most of it goes to Nagasaki, and thence to New York or London."

"In addition to the minerals we have talked of," continued Mr. Weigall, "this country has large bodies of iron to the northeast of Pyongyang, and considerable coal. All of these are in the hands of the Japanese, and they will probably be developed at an early date." [Copyright, 1909, by Frank G. Carpenter.]

The Cabbage Family

WHEN cooking cauliflower, cabbage or such savory vegetable, never put a lid on the pan. This sounds as though really you would want all of the odor to go through the house, but, on the contrary, it so blends with the air that it is hardly noticeable, while, if the lid is kept on the pan, it will have to be removed several times while its contents are cooking, and then the concentrated steam will pervade the whole premises and be extremely disagreeable.

It is possible to cook all kinds of vegetables without any odor at all by placing a large piece of bread over the pan; but most housekeepers feel this is a great waste, and refuse to allow such extravagance.

Regarding cauliflower, it is said that if it is turned head downward in the cooking, it will be quite safe from what ever steam might settle on the water. This is a very good bit of advice and one which deserves to be followed.

Roses for the Bridesmaids and Lilies for the Bride.

"Turn your attention to ferns and miniature jardiniere."

A tiny terra-cotta jardiniere filled with garden soil upon a substratum of broken pottery or pebbles, that prevent the mould from caking at the bottom, may be set with ferns that will live all the winter through. If you care to cover the box with a bell-glass, the life and the brighter verdure of the fern are doubly assured.

One of the most interesting table decorations I have is a globular vessel, with a top of the same material. In the bottom is put, every October, a bed of forest moss an inch or so in thickness. In this are set partridge-berry shoots studded with berries. The top is then laid in its place and the globe is water off, leaving the moss soaked through. All winter the berries have remained bright, and was, threadlike shoots trail themselves over the moss, pressing emulously against the glass as the spring comes on. I have reproduced, in petto, a woodland nook, kept green by a hidden spring, where wildlings cling and grow.

My magic crystal, which does all this fairy work for me "when snow lies on the hills," is now in the third year of service as a faithful standby three times a day, when other decorations are not procurable. It cost $1 when new.

Now that the hills recede on every side with flowers that seem to have thrashed into life and loveliness from the beatings of the mighty heart beneath them, there is no excuse for an unsmiling expanse of tablecloth. Beginning with pussy-willows and rising in the motif of the annual oratorio of the resurrection of the beautiful, through the revelation of crocuses, apple blossoms, tulips, hyacinths, wild roses and honeysuckle to the glory of midsummer, flowers may be had for the asking and gathering.

From the saucer of moss in which nestle blue-eyed houstonias, shy, yet easily entreated, it supplied with water and the velvet duvet in which their roots awoke to life, to the great bowl of June roses we may luxuriate in home decorations.

WAYSIDE BLOSSOMS

They lend poetry to plain living; they rest the eye and feed the fancy. Then will come the lavish wealth of the golden-rod and "the aster of the woods," the purple and gold in which Mother Earth bedecked herself for a brave, brief season. When they have passed we shall have with hazy and autumn leaves to cheer cottage and mansion.

Never set a meal in order without the touch of brightness and true refinement imparted by God's unfailing messengers to those who will receive the story they have to tell. If it be only a bunch of yellow from the dusty roadside, or a stately stalk of iris from the marsh, or a handful of ox-eyed daisies brought in by a little dirty hand "just for mother," make the best of it. Let it be your token—

"That God is thinking of His world."

Flowers that May Be Had for the Gathering.

"Arranged with Your Own Comfort and with No Additional Expense."

I have written to her what I now say to the housewife whose table has a rueful expression when there are no flowers to grace the meal:

"Potted plants are so unsatisfactory," mourns a correspondent whose sick chamber would be a bower of beauty if the flowers showered upon her by sympathetic friends could be coaxed into continual bloom.

"I have a sunny window, but all my plants become invalids, like myself, after a little while."

THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

AN HISTORIC TABLE

"Other times, other manners!" before we go into the discussion of the subject indicated by our title, let me indulge myself and the curious younger reader by copying from an old letter written by an eminent Virginia jurist, to his daughter almost 100 years ago. It describes one of the highest of the holidays aforesaid, to wit, a wedding: "We went in to supper at 11 o'clock, the ceremony having taken place at 3. The table was extremely handsome. The centerpiece was a cake, richly iced, eighteen inches across and ten inches in height, surrounded by a trochee-circled fringe of silver paper. In the hollow of the middle of this cake, left by the funnel of the mould, was placed a slender holly tree, four feet high, hung with fancy baskets and wreaths and streamers of silver filigree, and closely sprinkled with red berries. At one end of the table was a tall pyramid of jelly and ice cream; at the other, one of candied oranges. They were built about small silver rods, and to these were fastened silver paper festoons cut exquisitely into patterns as fine as lace, connecting the pyramids with the tree. The long table was lighted, as were all the rooms, by wax candles, in tall silver candlesticks, hung with tissue paper cut into every imaginable device, then dipped in spermaceti to make it transparent."

A CHANGE OF STYLE

All this reads like barbaric magnificence unbecoming the dawn of the nineteenth century and a republic. There is a touch of the meretricious in the three paper dipped in spermaceti. The latter-day critic is condemning this notice disapprovingly the absence of all floral decorations, unless the evergreen tinsel be reckoned as one. Yet it is not very long since we carried "mixed bouquets" to parties without envying at the setting of the tawdry paper lace encircling the stems, and, as I said just now, a shorter time since the daily custom of enlivening sober family meals with flowers and leaves became general. So general is it that in six out of ten homes occupied by the moderately well-to-do the table has a bare and comfortable look when the vase or bowl of living greenery and blossoms is not in place.

Nevertheless, it is not blossom time all the year round, and forlorn rather than the eyes, wearied by the prevailing leaden haze of sky and earth, crave relief that is likewise a promise of more genial seasons.

"Potted plants are so unsatisfactory," mourns a correspondent whose sick chamber would be a bower of beauty if the flowers showered upon her by sympathetic friends could be coaxed into continual bloom.

"I have a sunny window, but all my plants become invalids, like myself, after a little while."

I saw a paragraph in the Exchange asking for a poem entitled "Four by Four," My aunt received it at Christmas just after another aunt died, and I thought it beautiful.

I am it, and I don't know if it is just right to send it to you, but the name of the lady who asked for it is not given. Would you please tell me how to address your department of the poem?

"Not likely," certainly! Yet I talked yesterday with a woman who married at 14, whose daughter married at 15, and who was a grandmother at 22! In this enlightened age we do not rob a daughter of her wonderful and beautiful girlhood in that ruthless style. I have told you by mail how gratified I am by your letter and why. Your copy of the 1-ly poem has gone to the person who asked for it.

I wish "you girls" would write to me often! It stirs something very far down in my heart when you do. I was 14 myself not a century ago, and the memory will always be green and fragrant.

Address me simply—"Marion Harland," in care of the paper in which you read the Housemothers' Exchange.

A Thoughtful Reader

I have been receiving help from the Exchange for some time and at last see an opportunity of offering something in return.

A member from Peoria asked, some time ago, for "Heavenly Hash." I have the recipe, and inclose it. I have long had it in my mind to write something for the Exchange on economy in the home, but illness and sorrow have hindered the execution of the plan. I have saved my clippings, however, and if there is anything among them that you would like in answer to those who have "minded or lost," I shall be glad to mail it to you.

Mrs. F. H. H. (Rock Island, Ill.).

Save, also, the dribbles and trimmings of time that fall in your way, and write up "Economy in the Home." It was never needed by American housemothers more sorely than now.

Your offer of a providence for the improvident may be imprudent charity, but since there are readers less careful than yourself, or more unfortunate, your generosity is a veritable godsend.

The recipe for "Heavenly Hash" is so unlike those already published that I make room for it:

The recipe for "Heavenly Hash" is so unlike those already published that I make room for it:

Garnish with a few unhusked ripe strawberries.

This "hash" may be served on dessert plates with natural leaves forming a wreath around the edges, or in tall stems glasses set on plates covered with lace-paper doilies.

What is to be done with caviare, canned, and with pate de foie gras that comes in the little jars? Is the caviare ready to spread on sandwiches just as we see it, when the can is opened? Is the pate de foie gras to be cooked, or heated in some way?

MARY G. (Chicago).

Both are ready for use, taken just as they are. Spread the caviare upon heated crackers or hot dry toast. It is a good appetizer for the earlier course of a luncheon or as a relish for supper.

The pate de foie gras is turned out and sliced, to be eaten with thin bread and butter. Both are agreeable to the palate of the initiated, although the liking for caviare is said to be, like the fondness for olives, an acquired taste.

When Sulphur is Effectual

To "Troubled Housewife" (Philadelphia).

I can sympathize with you, as I had a similar experience once. I tried remedial measures including formaldehyde, cantharides, and other things, but nothing banished the dreaded B. B. Then I hit upon a remedy which proved perfectly effectual. I send it to you with pleasure.

Remove every white article out of the infected room. Hang your blouses upon chairs, raise your mattress from the springs; if you have a wooden bed, take it apart. Leave everything else in the room, even pictures. Close the windows very tightly and stop the keyhole of the door. If there be a register, close it and cover with a paper or thick cloth. Have ready two vessels of tin, or other metal, one larger than the other; put water in the larger. Break a pound of sulphur into small pieces; put some paper in the smaller vessel and sulphur upon the top of the paper. Set the vessel containing this in the larger. Do not let the water get at the sulphur. Place the vessels at a safe distance from any article of furniture. Light the paper and when the jets of blue flame arise leave the room, closing the door securely. Lay a strip of carpet at the bottom of the door to prevent the escape of the fumes. Do not open the room for four or five hours. Then you may enter and air it thoroughly.

You will find this absolutely effectual, if you are careful to retain all the fumes of the burning sulphur in the room.

Full of Ideas

I shall be glad to help the Exchange in any way by copying any of the ideas I have collected and stored for all kinds of tea, luncheon, dinner and supper. Also, novel ideas for "showers" and other parties.

Mrs. T. W. W. (Chicago).

I have made ready at various times upon "corners" and "pages." I wish you could see my cookbook. I should be glad to mail it to you if it is filled with your recipes.

Share your boards with us, at your convenience. We want "ideas" of that kind. Tell us, for example, how to conduct a "kitchen shower." Who gets up the affair? And is it invariably a surprise to the bride-elect? I heard the other day of a girl who engineered a linen shower for her own benefit. It seemed convulsively funny to me. Let us know how one should be conducted.

I am flattered that you have filled your book with our recipes.

Little Gas Bags

I present another recipe that tells all we want to know on the subject in hand without the waste of a word.

I am told that this is the way to make the little "gas bags" of potatoes you liked so well.

Puffed French Fried Potatoes.

Fry in the usual way until just before they are done. Then lift the frying basket of chips out of the fat; let it cool for a few seconds and plunge it back into it again. The change of temperature will make the chips puff up.

T. K. A. (Buffalo, N. Y.).

I can testify to the correctness of the formula. The potatoes must be sliced across, not lengthwise.

RESPONSIBLE PAGE OF FASHIONS & BEAUTY

Simple Beauty Formulas.

Every woman wants to be beautiful, but few can afford to spend much money for the various artifices required.

So for the economical, all those who care for their looks and do not mind a little extra trouble for their preservation, I shall tell what can be done with the simple things which lie at the door of home. True, my recipes require sometimes a little spending, but as the shepherd told the city child who wished to buy a rainbow above his head, "You cannot buy rainbows for a farthing apiece." Still, the cost of the extras will be very little, and when all the "pretty charms" are labeled and standing in a row in a neat closet, think of the fun of telling an admiring friend, "And I made them all myself."

What are the fundamental needs of woman's secret toilet? The refreshing and restoring bath, the fragrant toilet water which sweetens the skin and closes the pores against cold, the cold cream for removing cosmetics and improving the complexion; powder rouge, well, all of these things (except the bath water, of course) may be found in the following inexpensive materials—cucumbers, lettuce, oatmeal, strawberries, garden violets and roses.

VEGETABLE COLD CREAM.
Cucumber or lettuce juice.....1 ounce
Spermaceti.....1 ounce
White wax.....1 ounce
Oil of sweet almonds.....2 drops
Select the green stuffs in the fresh and ripe condition which would be needed for the table, cut and chop fine, pound to a paste in a crockery mortar, and extract juice by squeezing through a gauze bag.

Like the strawberry blush, this is preserved for a longer period if kept always in a chill place, and I know of no better one than a refrigerated or earth-cooled cellar. Small quantities may be put in a jar for weekly use.

OATMEAL BATH BAGS.
Oatmeal.....5 pounds
Florentine orris root (powdered).....1 pound
Almond meal.....1 pound
Old castile soap scraped to a powder.....4 pounds

Drop one of these bags in a warm bath, moving it about until the water is milky. Take the bath in the afternoon or at night.

A fragrant water for the after-bath comes next, and the pungent lavender water which is so popular is good and most cheaply made.

For this, add one ounce of oil of lavender to one pint of spirits of ammonia, keep in a tightly stoppered bottle, and before bottling let the mixture stand several days, agitating the recipient occasionally.

A simple and delicious face powder may be made in all the flower months by gathering a sweet blossom—roses, violets and jessamine are the choicest—and burying them in finely powdered rice or potato starch and orris root, in proportions of one part to three of starch. Renew the flowers every day for a week, when the powder should be delightfully perfumed.

The rice powder itself may also be made at home, but as it is tedious work and the "boughten" sort is very cheap, I cannot recommend it.

The blush for my lady is made of strawberries—the sweet red and pink things are excellent for the complexion as well when eaten with milk and sugar. Select the reddest and ripest berries and compose the bloom in this way:

STRAWBERRY BLUSH.
Fresh, ripe strawberries.....3 quarts
Distilled water.....1 pint

Put these in a fruit jar and place them in a saucup of water over a low fire to bubble for two hours. Strain twice through cheesecloth, and when cold add Deodorized alcohol.....12 ounces

Russian lemongrass (dissolved).....30 grains
Essence of lemon.....15 grains
Oil of neroli.....4 drops
Oil of rose.....2 drops

We now come to the necessary cold cream. This can be made of lettuce and cucumbers. This formula is good for either:

But if you want hair which will materially improve in three months' time under what I may call a kitchen treatment, get several beef marrow bones and try out their healing fat for a scalp grease. Clarify this perfume with violet or any other scent, and apply the oil with the fingers of both hands directly to the scalp.

Never was there a more healing and nourishing oil for the scalp than beef marrow supplies, yet while telling me that their mothers always employed it upon their flourishing heads in their childhood, many of my correspondents declare they themselves had no faith in its good results.

The moral is obvious—none of us is as wise as our mothers. For every one of these dear women correspondents were losing their hair.

Last-Moment Fixings For the Summer Wardrobe.

No matter how carefully a season's wardrobe has been prepared, there is always something which is lacking at the last moment. This may be a single trifling thing which a rush to the shops will at once supply, but quite as often it is some supplementary article found absolutely necessary to make a garment becoming.

For the lack of this dressy girdle, or more becoming girdle, or dainty lace edge collar, the effect of the dress is nil. The oversight must be remedied nine times out of ten, with home sewing and then, if the sewer has been wise in her generation and bought the pretty ornaments which are needed some time or other in every sewing household for just such touches, the labor is diminished by half. For it is far easier to shape a pretty thing from generous lengths of material on hand than it is to make it from a skimpy guesst-at-lacking demand for any six and one-half yards of ribbon.

The dresser one below calls for the same measurements: 1 yard of satin width, and four yards of soft ribbon six inches wide for the sashes. If a soft lustrous silk is preferred, use only two yards of ribbon and for a really splendid evening dress the graceful scarfing would be most effective if of some sparkling net or gilt gauze.

In drawing D are seen the little Dutch collars now so popular and pretty for young girls. Any scrap of linen would make each collar, and if the sewer is gifted in needlework the trifle may become a thing of exquisite distinction. Such collars and labels may be made at the shops, but they may own prettier sewing and finer lace if made at home, and for those to whom dress is a work of art, a most stylish departure is possible. A little imported perfume frock seen showed one of these neat neck fixings in the green material, with needle work of bright scarlet.

Another dress—a charming little anconet in soft gray silk—had three cords of deep yellow braid, finished with narrow quillings of pure white footings. Both gowns showed what wit and taste could do with a simple variation of the conventional thing.

In conclusion, let me touch again upon the point of the personal note with home sewing. Fashion is a word to obey when it concerns the important features of a get-up, such as the lines of a costume or the color scheme. Here marked departures from prevailing styles effect a look of eccentricity. But when it comes to the little thing, home sewers who have taste and simple time may do wonders with a garment and employ all the pretty odds and ends accumulated in the long career of sewing.

These sensible women, and those who direct the greatest makers themselves, are really the best dressed in the world of women. They make the most of following the moods of Fashion which turn every street corner, and set the pace for a number of their own.

So if you are quite certain of your taste—this is essential—go ahead with the summer fixings, and turn out something nobody has ever seen.

each understands, a grateful, eloquent language, whose meaning is conveyed without speech. It is necessary, then, that we first acquire this language, for the promptings of the heart are not always the best teacher.

In the more formal societies the news of death is immediately recognized by going to the house and leaving a personal card. It is not the custom at this visit to enter the house, or to leave flowers, one must not intrude, even to that extent, on the attention of the mourners within. This personal recognition of the sorrow that has befallen the house by means of a card is obligatory. If one is from home the telegraph carries the message, but never the telephone. A telephone message is a rude intrusion, since it demands response from someone within the house, and at such a time even the mails and others of the household have new and exacting duties.

If one is not intimate enough to present a card in person the card is usually by mail and generally with a pencilled "with sympathy," or some kindred phrase. This seems but slight attention when the sympathy is keen, and when the heart prompts something more. Nevertheless, such matters are regulated by good taste and a knowledge that even in the house of grief there are many important things to engage the attention, and the inmates must be left free to give their minds to such matters.

The reason that the death notices in newspapers are daily and so carefully read is that they are so widely spread, and meeting so rarely as people do in cities, one might fall through ignorance to perform these conventional acts of sympathy toward those who are afflicted. The custom of leaving flowers is no longer held, the newspapers performing their office.

Not to go to the funeral of an acquaintance is an omission, and a lack of friendship and respect is one to which we all are expected to return. On the other hand, no one who is not bound by ties of sufficient intimacy is expected to attend a funeral. Anything that might seem like curiosity either of person or place is to be avoided.

As we all know, the tribute of flowers has been abused; but the request, "kindly omit flowers," is only intended for those who might incur the expense of sending them for conventional reasons only. All flowers at funerals should afterwards be sent to hospitals or to the sick room.

After the funeral, all cards and telegrams should be answered by a return card on which the words "with sympathy," or some other brief personal expression. This card—and it may be added here, all the cards in this connection—should be modest and plain. Those lugubrious hands of black that were formerly in vogue have passed out with what is known as "deep mourning." In this respect a significant, momentous change has taken place.

It is the great house of mourning in London which gives the modes to all the world, even to Paris. It was served when Queen Victoria died that Alexandra and all the royal princesses wore long veils over their faces, but these were so long that their faces were plainly seen beneath. In England mourning is very greatly lightened.

One wishes to feel the sympathy of friends, yet the bruised spirit shrinks and quivers at the least ill-considered touch. Etiquette then comes in as one of those protecting influences by which sympathy may be proffered on the one hand, and gratefully accepted on the other. It furnishes a language which is in need of protecting influences.

FIG. B—A USEFUL SLIP.

Preparing Clothes For the Dyeing Pot.

THRIFTY mothers and housekeepers who are now repairing old wearing apparel will doubtless find a linen dress that has iron rust or other stains that did not appear when the garment was stored away; a straw hat that looked stylish when packed into its box, but now seems out of date, and many small articles, such as ribbons, laces, feathers, flowers, etc., that when treated to the "dye pot" will be as pretty as when new if directions on the "dyes" are carefully followed by amateurs.

Take, for instance, white and delicately colored wash dresses. If before subjecting them to the dye bath stains or spots are cleaned off the coloring will be a success; otherwise a hoise or a worse marring may result, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times.

For removing wine, ink, fruit or grass stains try glycerin and alcohol together. Rub the mixture into the stain in the case of white goods. Javelle water may be resorted to. If colored goods are stained are dyed then they may be cleaned in Javelle water, but not otherwise, as the water takes out color. Rust spots will disappear if a solution of one part citric acid to twenty parts of water, rinsing afterward in warm water.

An iodine stain will often respond to sponging with pure alcohol, while blood stains should be covered with a paste made from raw starch and exposed to the sun for a day. Then the garment may be cleaned with Javelle water.

Slits should be cleaned with great care, as the colors are very easily affected. If, however, in the process of removing the stain the color becomes lighter it can generally be restored by touching lightly with chloroform.

It is a mistake to spread stains by the careless use of remedies, and to prevent this catastrophe a good plan and one which prevents rings from forming is to place a clean white blotter under the spot before applying the solvent.

It can be made from flowered silk or lawn, or of some daintily striped or mercerized material. When it is designed to wear under a nice moulted dress it is better to make it of a soft and fine fabric for evening the low-neck and short-sleeved cut is preferable; but for a simpler frock for day use the high cut shown in the smaller drawing might be preferred. The quantity of material required for a 14-year-old girl of medium figure would be seven and three-quarter yards thirty-two inches wide.

Charming bodice decorations are displayed in drawing C, those showing two which are much in vogue just now. They can be utilized for new gowns and made in material to match in color, or be the reviving touches that some skimpy and not too becoming frock in the wardrobe needs.

The upper fixing of the illustration is made of cashmere with soutache braid as trimming, and is laced with black velvet ribbon, while the lower garbure is of satin, richly embroidered, and its sash portions of soft muslin.

In drawing D are seen the little Dutch collars now so popular and pretty for young girls. Any scrap of linen would make each collar, and if the sewer is gifted in needlework the trifle may become a thing of exquisite distinction.

Cleaning Bedding At Home.

It is customary, and certainly an excellent idea, to subject bed, bedding, pillows, blankets, etc., to a thorough cleaning and renovation in the spring.

When one has the means to do so, the pleasantest plan is to send each article to a professional to be cleaned, but the average housewife cannot always afford to do this and so must resort to home remedies.

Taking the blankets first, these will cost from 50 cents to $1 each if sent to a cleaner, while if done at home they will be quite as clean and perhaps smell sweeter at a quarter the cost, says a writer in the Washington Star. Washing blankets is not hard work, but it is heavy, so where there are a number to be washed a strong woman might be needed for a day, the employer superintending the process from beginning to finish.

To prepare the bath for blankets, two cakes of laundry soap should be cut up and added to hot water, making a jelly.

If the water is hard, add borax until it is softened, otherwise only sufficient for whitening and cleaning will be necessary—a tablespoonful to a pall of water.

Lay the blankets in the solution, cover and leave for twenty minutes, then lift them up and beat down and squeeze through the hands, releasing all the dirt and soil. A board should not be used, neither should the blankets be rubbed directly on the blankets; nor, in fact, on any woolen goods, because soap catches and tangles the tiny hairs, which cause the material to shrink.

Put the blankets through the wringer into a second warm soap bath and repeat the first process, then rinse in clear warm water and borax.

Hang to dry, preferably in the sun. A sunny, windy day is the best for blanket washing.

Lamb's wool comfortables may be cleaned in the same way as suggested for blankets. Cotton comfortables are apt to "mat" when washed. If faded or slightly soiled they may be hung in the air and then some cheap cotton material bought and made into a new cover.

Bedspreads should be put through the regular laundering process.

Mattresses should be taken into the open air whenever possible (to be thoroughly sunned and aired) and lightly beaten with a rattan beater.

This will release dust that has entered the felt or hair, as well as seen when a white cloth is applied.

Stains may be removed from the cover.

Another sleeve that seems to be growing in popularity is a new bishop sleeve, full and long and caught as the wrist with a band of lace or insertion, which over the top of the sleeve, the same material as that of the gown, adapts.

Many of the newest ones are double sleeves, the upper portions being made of the material.

These upper sleeves are cut off at

"EASTLEIGH" ON CHEROKEE DRIVE

In purchasing home property, either for immediate or future use, one should consider the price, possible future appreciation, surroundings and convenience.

Account of the modest selling prices at "EASTLEIGH," the appreciation is bound to be large, estimated at 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. for several years, comparing our prices with those adjoining Cherokee Park.

The surroundings can not be excelled in this or any other city. Adjoining Cherokee Park, the million dollar garden, maintained at the public expense, with beautiful winding roads and gently sloping hills, one could not imagine a more beautiful spot.

LITTLE MAIDEN

WITH YOUR DOLL.

[S. E. Klier in Chicago Record-Herald.] Little maiden with your doll. And your future all untried. Still you have a charm that all Childless women once possessed: 'Tis the sweet old instinct of Mother-love within your breast.

Little maiden with your doll. Dress it in a little shroud; When the years have made you tall, When good fortune makes you proud, You will gladly go to live Where no babies are allowed.

CACTUS CENTER AND MARS.

[Arthur Chapman in Denver Republican.] A stranger bowed in Monday, on the stage from 'Crest Three Bars.' With materials for talking to the distant planet Mars; He'd heard about our climate, with its air so thin and dry. And he 'lowed that right in Cactus he could catch some Martian's eye.

He explained his scheme in detail, and unpacked his big machine. We was all enthusiastic, and we helped him set the truck. But the game was knocked plum sideways by some unexpected luck.

It happened that Bear Hawkins had set out in search of play—When he gets his share of moisture, Bear is apt to feel that way—He clattered down the main street, with his bronco on a lope, And he caught the sky professor in a whirlin' noose of rope.

He dragged the Mars machinery out across the prairie floor, And the telescope was busted, and the cornucopia cowed no more; He apologized, plum handsome, when he sobered up next day, But he had to write his sorrow, 'cause the highbrow'd gone away.

ROSES FOR PERFUME.

[La Vulgarisation Scientifique.] Roses from which perfumed essences are extracted are not precisely the same as the beautiful flowers admired in the garden, and when taking a walk about the month of June in the rose garden at Bagatelle the flower beds so pleasing to the senses of sight and smell bear little resemblance to the plantations especially intended to supply roses for perfumers.

The rose of Provins and others that are cultivated for the extraction of perfumes are much less pretty and charming. They are cultivated in several regions of France, in Algeria, in the Orient, in some parts of Asia Minor, but principally in Bulgaria.

Such roses require a light soil and a certain amount of humidity. The flowers should be gathered in the morning before the heat of the sun. They should be picked or scarcely opened flowers. When the petals are too widely opened the aroma diminishes. It diminishes still more if the flowers begin to get heated through being left too long in sacks.

As the season only lasts from five to six weeks, it may be imagined what minute care the harvest requires, together with the need of a numerous trained personnel. The flowers are distilled the same day as they are gathered.

Bulgaria is one of the principal markets for essences of roses. It produces an annual average of from 5,000 to 6,000 kilograms of essence, valued at about 2,000,000 francs. Of these 4,000 kilograms America takes 1,600 and France 1,500.

The price of a kilogramme of essence varies considerably according to the abundance of the flowers and the more or less favorable circumstances under which they are gathered. It varies from 500 francs to 700 francs, sometimes more. Some 3,500 kilograms of flowers are required for a kilogramme of essence. A good plantation, carefully cultivated, will yield 1,000 kilograms to the hectare.

In France and Algeria the distillation is carried out with highly efficient apparatus. At Grasse and Boufarick may be seen some distillation works that are models, not only as regards their distilling apparatus, but also for their installation of every kind. The plant is supervised and tests carried out by capable chemists, who make it produce as much as can reasonably be expected. But in Bulgaria modern installations are an exception, and in general the distillation processes are quite rudimentary.

OBJECT TO FILIPINO BARE LEGS.

[New York Sun.]

Right at the close of Sunday's feverish and fussy afternoon Police Inspector O'Brien, the boss of Coney Island this summer, hunted up Manager Sam Gumpertz, of Dreamland, to tell him that the Filipinos would have to grow pants by morning. It seemed that the bare legs of our little brown brothers and sisters in the flag had shocked a party of sightseers from Hoboken, N. J., or it might have been Peapack; Inspector O'Brien wouldn't tell. So they beat it around to Eighth street and said that it was a shame the way things were running at Coney, and if something weren't done about it they would write to the Evening Post.

O'Brien got out the Code and figured that any way you looked at it the Sunday law contemplated undergarments for the Filipinos. Sam Gumpertz was enterprising a party composed of a quantity of soft shell crabs, Mr. Wells Hawks, Old Doc Potter and Wally Decker, the old circus man. He received the news calmly. He said that it was against the religious beliefs of an ignorant to remove himself. He said that his little bunch of head-hunters were wards of the United States Government, and that nobody was President Taft or somebody up high in the War Department had a right to order them to wear pants.

Mr. Gumpertz couldn't see where the police had a toe to wriggle in this matter. It wasn't any of their business, and if they interfered it was likely they would be swatted with an injunction from a Federal court. If anything was more modest than a simple undressed bare leg, Mr. Gumpertz had never heard of it, especially when the bareness was the Filipino national costume. Therefore, he concluded, the better head-hunters in old Chinatown's village would continue to romp around as usual. The Government decided at the St. Louis Exposition that the Filipinos could not be forced to dress in trousers.

The inspector went away thoughtfully and disappeared in the neighborhood of the police station to consult Assistant Corporation Counsel Malone, very likely.

NEW TREASURY VAULT.

[Washington Correspondence of Brooklyn Eagle.]

The vault space of the Treasury Department is so inadequate that it has been necessary for the Government to do business with a local storage company, just like any Washington housewife who wants to put away her rugs for the summer.
